

President Asked to Intervene in Fight Over Loading Ships

Maritime Union Officials Fear International Crisis

BY NEIL GILBRIDE
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Maritime union officials asked President Johnson today to intervene personally in a labor dispute over the loading of wheat for Russia to avert "an international crisis."

The Maritime trades department of the AFL-CIO also took a sharp verbal slap at Luther Hodges for accusing the unions of trying to make U.S. foreign policy by threatening to boycott the wheat shipments.

Earlier, top maritime union officials rejected the personal plea of Asst. Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds, sent here by the President because of the threatened boycott.

Dispute Over Ships

The unanimously adopted resolution by the maritime trades department accused Hodges and the Department of Commerce of becoming "an agent for profit-hungry operators."

The crux of the dispute is the insistence of union officials that at least half the wheat shipped to Russia go in U.S. flag vessels. They said the late President Kennedy had pledged this but that now federal officials were claiming not enough American vessels are available.

Kaukauna Man Crushed When Car Flips Over

Fatality Boosts State Toll to 119 for 1964

A car which flipped over and after striking a highway culvert about 11:30 p.m. Sunday

His death brought to 119 the total of fatalities on the state's highways so far this year. This compares with 75 through this date one year ago.

Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps ruled VandeHey died from crushing chest injuries received when the front end of his car landed on him. VandeHey's body was found by county police crushed between the car and a farm fence on County Trunk JJ, one-half mile east of the French Road. VandeHey had been alone in the car.

The death was the second in Outagamie County in 1964 and the second involving only a single car. A Milwaukee man died Feb. 3 when his car went out of control in New London.

Conferees Try To Speed Action On Tax Cut Bill

Compromise May be Sent to President During Coming Week

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate - House conferees resume work today on the tax bill with the possibility that a compromise measure may be worked out by Wednesday.

This could mean the measure would be ready for President Johnson's signature by next week, opening the way for higher paychecks for the average taxpayer by mid-March.

The conferees are trying to iron out differences between the $11.2 billion tax cut passed by the House and the $11.9 billion reduction approved in the Senate.

Although the pace in committees is expected to pick up, Congress generally planned another light week.

Housing Bill Hearings

The controversial civil rights bill—cornerstone with the tax cut of the Johnson administration's legislative program—was expected to arrive at the Senate's door today. The 11-part omnibus measure received 290-130 approval from the House last week.

A House banking subcommittee starts hearings today on President Johnson's housing bill. Robert C. Weaver, head of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, was called as the first witness. A Senate subcommittee begins work on it Wednesday.

A House Labor subcommittee scheduled the start of hearings on another Johnson program—a plan to institute double time for overtime in certain industries, a penalty designed to encourage employment of more workers rather than the use of overtime labor.

Wirtz First Witness

Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz was the leadoff witness for this measure.

Baseball and football magazines will be on hand today and Tuesday before a Senate Antitrust subcommittee which is considering a professional sports antitrust bill.

The Senate Rules Committee continues behind closed doors its probe into the doings of Bobby Baker, former secretary of the Senate majority.

On the House floor, the most important bill this week will be the $16.9 billion military procurement authorization bill coming up Thursday.

The Senate has nothing important scheduled for the floor and may be in recess several days this week.

3 More Scientists Leaving England For Other Countries

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP)—The brain drain of leading British scientists is claimed to formally adopt the proposal to boycott loading of Soviet wheat shipments and then ask going to the United States and the Executive Council for its one to Australia.

Sir Robert Aitken, vice chancellor of the university, called made up of 29 vice presidents for an increase of government and other top officers of the 13.5-million-member federation.

3 Americans Killed, 51 Injured in Saigon Blast

U. S. Army Medics carry critically wounded American victim into Army dispensary in Saigon Sunday, administering blood plasma in process, after terrorists planted bomb in a Saigon service theater. A Viet Cong terrorist, using a homemade pistol, killed the U. S. military policeman on guard outside the lobby while at least another one planted a powerful bomb just inside. A Marine captain, seeing the bomb, rushed in to warn the 500 persons inside the Capital Kindo Theater and was killed by falling debris. At least one other American was killed and there were 49 injured. (AP Wirephoto)

Ricksha Boy Suspect in Terrorism

BY MALCOLM W. BROWNE
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—South Vietnamese police held a wounded ricksha driver today as a prime suspect in the bombing of a U.S. movie theater.

Three Americans were killed and 51 Americans—including women and children—were wounded Sunday in the latest anti-American violence in Saigon. Nine Vietnamese also were injured.

One of the dead was a military policeman who was shot while standing guard outside the theater. Another was a Marine Corps captain who was crushed under falling debris as he ran inside to warn the theater's 500 patrons.

Lighten Security

The body of the third American was so badly mangled identification was delayed.

The U.S. command in South Viet Nam ordered security measures tightened to protect American personnel in the capital from terrorism by the Communist Viet Cong. On Feb. 9, two bombs exploded under the bleachers of a softball field near Saigon Airport, killing two U.S. enlisted men and injuring 23 other Americans.

Although police declined to discuss the ricksha boy's suspected role in the bombing, the shooting and blast apparently were the work of a highly skilled terrorist team.

2 Terrorists Seen

Witnesses saw at least two terrorists. They said one shot the military policeman at close range. Another hurried into the theater with a canvas satchel.

A third man—or woman—may have been involved.

A U.S. military spokesman said the lone Vietnamese civil policeman on duty outside the theater was seen pedaling away on a bicycle shortly before the attack.

The MP was killed by a single shot.

Northeast States Blanketed by Snow

4 Women Drown When Car Slips Off Road Into Cove

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A sneak Northeast storm prevailed in the major part of the nation. More rain fell along the coast and there was light snow and caused at least 13 in the northern Rockies and the deaths in New England Sunday.

Temperatures dropped into the teens over much of the area after the storm passed and mostly in the teens in sections of the central Rockies, the upper Great Lakes, the upper Ohio Valley as well as in the snow-covered Northeast.

The wind, clocked at 32 miles per hour at Truro on Cape Cod, lashed coastal communities, built up huge drifts and created blizzard-like conditions.

In Maine, four women drowned when their car slid off a U.S. 1 and landed upside down in a Passamaquoddy Bay cove at Robbinston.

Airports Closed

At least nine other persons—six in Massachusetts and three in Connecticut—died of heart attacks while shoveling snow or from storm-caused exhaustion.

Eighteen inches of snow fell in the Plymouth, N.H., area. Lebanon, N.H., had 14; Worcester, Mass., 12; Brunswick, Maine, 11; Boston, 10; Hartford, Conn., 8 and Montpelier, Vt., 6.

The storm closed airports, all but one in Massachusetts, and caused power failures in dozens of communities.

Upper New York Hit

The storm moved out to sea south of Nova Scotia Sunday night.

Fresh snow also covered all of upstate New York, ranging up to 15 inches in the eastern Catskill Mountains. Drifting was reported in some areas, chiefly along Lake Erie.

Generally fair and dry weather.

Ecuadorian Vessel Crashes Into Oil Rig

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The Coast Guard said a 475-foot Ecuadorian freighter collided with an oil rig about 75 miles southwest of Morgan City early today.

The tugboat Green Bay tried unsuccessfully to free the 390-foot tanker, which is owned by Kerr Steamship Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

The Coast Guard cutter Mesquite was on its way from Sturgeon Bay to make a new attempt.

Court Cites Need for Fair Districting

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court ruled today that Constitution requires "equal representation for equal numbers of people" as a fundamental goal for the U.S. House of Representatives.

The decision was handed down in a Georgia congressional districting case.

Justice Black, delivering the majority opinion, said federal courts have authority to look into congressional districting.

"While it may not be possible to draw congressional districts with mathematical precision," Justice Black said, "that is no excuse for ignoring our Constitution's plain objective of making equal representation for equal numbers of people the fundamental goal for the House of Representatives."

Justice Harlan, in a dissenting opinion, wrote:

"I had not expected to witness the day when the Supreme Court of the United States would render a decision which casts grave doubt on the constitutionality of the composition of the House of Representatives."

"It is not an exaggeration to say that such is the effect of today's decision. The court's holding that the Constitution requires states to select representatives either by elections at large or by elections in districts composed 'as nearly as is practicable' of equal population places in jeopardy the seats of almost all the members of the present House of Representatives."

3 Die in Copter Crash in Georgia

HINESVILLE, Ga. (AP)—An Army helicopter crashed and burned at nearby Ft. Stewart Sunday, killing three occupants and injuring another.

An Army spokesman said the helicopter was firing machine guns on the base's Metz range when it crashed. The aircraft, which operated out of Ft. Benning, Ga., was attached to the 15th Air Assault Division.

Names of the victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Malice Charged in Slaying

Jurors in Ruby's Murder Trial To be Picked From Panel of 900

BY REILMAN MORIN
DALLAS (AP)—Jack Ruby murder, as an integral part of the case for Ruby, accused of murder with malice, But Henry M. Wade, Dallas County district attorney, says in a strange case overshadowed County district attorney, says in the unanswered questions in Oswald's guilt or innocence is the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

The key phrase in the indictment of Ruby charges he "did then and there with malice aforethought kill Lee Harvey Oswald, a self-styled Marxist, two days after the President was killed in Dallas by the assassin Oswald was charged with murdering him.

The trial is starting in a courtroom directly across the street from the building where the assassin lurked and then fired at Kennedy.

The freighter was bound from Houston, Tex., to New Orleans, they will try to go into the circumstances of the President's assertion that he became unhinged with grief by the death of the President.

His chief defense counsel, Melvin Mouron Belli, of San Francisco in an informal talk with reporters Sunday night spoke of psychomotor epilepsies, "psychic shock" and "trauma."

He pictured Ruby as a victim of psychomotor epilepsies, subject to blackouts, which could be touched off by rage, shock, or a powerful emotion.

Ruby May Testify

He said he did not know whether he would put Ruby on the witness stand, but he said: "If he's on the stand a long time, you'll see a definite dysfunction. This guy, if you keep him there, on the stand or in jail much longer, you won't have to take him any place to show he's wacky."

The state contends Ruby was claim of temporary insanity.

The 900 jury candidates—nearly double the normal number—has been called in order to qualify 12 as unprejudiced.

Near Assassination Scene

Ruby, 32, a pale, pudgy night club operator, shot down Lee Harvey Oswald, a self-styled Marxist, two days after the President was killed in Dallas by the assassin Oswald was charged with murdering him.

This is equivalent to a charge of murder in the first degree in most other states. It carries a maximum penalty of execution in the electric chair. The minimum is two years in prison.

Wade says he will demand the death penalty for Ruby. Out of 25 murder trials, Wade has obtained 24 convictions.

Ruby's trial, it appears now, will develop into a battle of psychiatrists.

His defense will pivot on a claim of temporary insanity.

Your Problems

Dream Interpretation Not A Part of Lander's Column

BY ANN LANDERS
DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a respectable married woman with a good husband and two nice children. The problem is this: Almost every night I dream about my boss.

I admire this man very much. He is the kindest and most generous person I have ever known. He is also old enough to be my father so I have no romantic interest in him whatsoever — at least not during the daytime. But when night rolls around it's a different story.

The next day in the office I can hardly face him. I keep telling myself a person can't help what he dreams, but the boss must wonder why I act so self-conscious. When he speaks to me I always pretend to be fussing with a hangnail or a loose button on my blouse — anything to avoid looking him in the eye.

The boss' wife does not treat him very nicely which makes me mad, but of course this is none of my business and I would never let on that I notice in my dreams he is always seeking consolation from me.

My embarrassment is beginning to interfere with my work. Do dreams mean anything? Can you help me? — Double Life

DEAR LIFE: Yes, dreams do mean something, but I'm no interpreter of dreams and what they mean.

At the subconscious level you unquestionably have some suppressed desires in connection with your boss. If these dreams persist perhaps you'd better get another job before your subconscious desires turn into conscious ones.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter married a young man with whom she had kept steady company for four years. During their courtship the parents of the young man were polite but cool to us. We were never invited to their home for dinner although they accepted two invitations to ours.

Recently I had occasion to call their home. They did not suggest that my husband come, although other couples were invited. He was crushed and none of us says we must have nothing to do with these people since it is apparent they don't care for our company.

We have planned several family affairs this year and have decided not to invite them. Our daughter is hurt and embarrassed by the attitude of her in-laws but we do not speak of it. Are we right in excluding them? — Heavy Hearts

DEAR HEAVY HEARTS: Being related is not a good enough reason to invite people to your parties. Furthermore, these people are not your daughter's relatives, not yours.

Since they have indicated no desire to count you as social friends, take the hint. Invite them only when their absence would embarrass your daughter and son-in-law, such as a christening party for your grandchild or your children's wedding anniversary.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A very good friend of mine is under 30 years of age. She is beautiful, bright and holds a responsible position. This woman has just married for the third time — another handsome, mean, abusive sweet-talker with an alcoholic problem. In fact, the first husband and the third husband look enough alike to be brothers.

I would be willing to bet my bottom dollar that this marriage will end up as the others did — in pieces. Why would such an intelligent, lovely woman be stupid enough to make the same mistake three times?

— Distressed Onlooker

DEAR LOOKER: Your friend's choice of husbands has nothing to do with brains. The woman marries punitive, abusive men because she has a personality problem.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Church Group to Elect Officers

Election of officers will take place at the meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist Church at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. Mrs. Roman Eckes will have charge of the program, "Modern Hannahs". Serving as hostesses will be Mrs. Stanley Gillespie, chairman, Miss Mabel Gillespie, Mrs. Catherine Hiebel and Mrs. Albert Glassnap.

Needle Work

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am thinking of a blanket cover and would like to incorporate the initials of the girl's maiden name. I don't like being a wet blanket, but anything monogrammed using the initials of the fiancé's last name can be risky, for "there's many a slip between the cup and the lip." Should the engagement be broken, such a gift would be an unpleasant reminder for the girl. If by chance she should return it, you would have the blanket cover on your hands with a monogram that means nothing unless you would be lucky enough to find someone else on your gift list for the future with the correct initial sequence.

Hand Kissing

DEAR LOUISE: If a man should take hold of a lady's hand and kiss it, what should her reaction be? Should she say something or just smile?

LOUISE DAVIS ANSWERS: When a lady accepts hand kissing gracefully and graciously, her poised smile is enough. The gesture of hand-kissing needs no spoken words. The custom is so rare in this country that it is almost nonexistent. But when it is present, he was crushed and none of us says we must have nothing to do with these people since it is apparent they don't care for our company.

Tourists' Dress

DEAR LOUISE: I am going on a Mediterranean cruise this spring. Would slacks be permissible for a woman to wear at any time on shore excursions?

LOUISE DAVIS ANSWERS: No. Slacks should never be worn ashore. And that goes for shorts too. Such dress would offend the natives. The appropriate outfits to wear on shore excursions would be a suit or street dress, also a top coat depending on the climate. Travelers should be provided with hats or head coverings when visiting Catholic churches or cathedrals. Slacks and shorts may be worn on shipboard around a swimming pool or for deck sports. I am strongly in favor of any traveler to a foreign landing being a good will ambassador. Perhaps with decorum in dress and behavior, some of the signs, "Americans go home" will come down.

PLAY SAFE

DEAR LOUISE: Would it be correct to get something monogrammed as a shower gift for a future bride? I am thinking of a blanket cover and would like to incorporate the initials of the girl's maiden name. I don't like being a wet blanket, but anything monogrammed using the initials of the fiancé's last name can be risky, for "there's many a slip between the cup and the lip." Mother Worries About Son, 15, Declaring Independence

BY DR. EVE JONES

DEAR DR. JONES: On the 4th of July, my 15-year-old son declared his independence of his father and me. He said he could do just as good a job of running his life as we could.

We decided we'd let him find out how wrong he is. So we haven't interfered in his life since then.

He still makes good grades at school. But nothing else is good. He goes to sleep at midnight and doesn't eat regular meals.

Neither. Your son needs guidance and protection now, but it sounds as if you don't know how to provide this.

Go to the agency whose name I'm sending you and get some personal help in learning to be effective and responsible parents. If your son also needs personal psychological counseling, the agency will arrange appointments for him, too.

DEAR DR. JONES: My 26-month-old son always was a very happy, cooperative boy until five weeks ago, when I started to train him to use the toilet. I guess I must be using the wrong system. Because now he whines and refuses to mind me. Tell me the right steps to take in training him so it doesn't have this effect, please.

MRS. T. J. You're wise to connect these changes with your deliberate efforts to train your son to use the toilet. Stop these efforts and let your son have as much independence and privacy about using the toilet as your husband has. Any other approach is bound to create emotional problems, bigger or smaller depending on the approach used, but always present. My pamphlet, "How To Solve Toileting Problems," explains more about this.

Wistful Man Tips Contract

Many a philosopher has spent his entire lifetime distinguishing between what is important and what is unimportant. For bridge players the distinction is simple: the important tricks are those that have a bearing on the contract, and all other tricks are unimportant.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am thinking of a blanket cover and would like to incorporate the initials of the girl's maiden name. I don't like being a wet blanket, but anything monogrammed using the initials of the fiancé's last name can be risky, for "there's many a slip between the cup and the lip." Should the engagement be broken, such a gift would be an unpleasant reminder for the girl. If by chance she should return it, you would have the blanket cover on your hands with a monogram that means nothing unless you would be lucky enough to find someone else on your gift list for the future with the correct initial sequence.

DEAR LOUISE: If a man should take hold of a lady's hand and kiss it, what should her reaction be? Should she say something or just smile?

LOUISE DAVIS ANSWERS: When a lady accepts hand kissing gracefully and graciously, her poised smile is enough. The gesture of hand-kissing needs no spoken words. The custom is so rare in this country that it is almost nonexistent. But when it is present, he was crushed and none of us says we must have nothing to do with these people since it is apparent they don't care for our company.

Recently I had occasion to call their home. They did not suggest that my husband come, although other couples were invited. He was crushed and none of us says we must have nothing to do with these people since it is apparent they don't care for our company.

We have planned several family affairs this year and have decided not to invite them. Our daughter is hurt and embarrassed by the attitude of her in-laws but we do not speak of it. Are we right in excluding them? — Heavy Hearts

DEAR HEAVY HEARTS: Being related is not a good enough reason to invite people to your parties. Furthermore, these people are not your daughter's relatives, not yours.

Since they have indicated no desire to count you as social friends, take the hint. Invite them only when their absence would embarrass your daughter and son-in-law, such as a christening party for your grandchild or your children's wedding anniversary.

Live Within Your Income
Writer Says Save for Future,
But Don't Forget Fun Funds

BY MARY FEELEY
Consultant in Money Management
Dear Miss Feeley:
My husband, on retiring, will have a good pension, enough to allow us to continue to live comfortably. Our house is clear. There is hospitalization, and my husband has an extended medical coverage—which I can't get. In addition there is a very considerable backlog of good investments. It is here that the problem lies. We could cash these in gradually, and over 20 years could do some exciting and interesting things. But there is always the spectre of "Old Age." If we are lucky, and both keep our mental and physical health, there would be no problem. But repeatedly we see older people having to have costly surgery, the attendant hospital costs and nursing. We see them having to go into nursing homes or institutions of one kind or another.
If we could just get some kind of figures on the amount of money that we would have to set aside to cover that kind of problem of the aged, then we could use the rest of our money and enjoy it.
Like all parents, the one thing we want to be sure of is that we do not put ourselves on our children. Of course, what we don't use they will inherit. But one of the things we should like to use any surplus money for is to help them now, while they are still young and need it more.

I'm sure this problem of ours is not unique, and I'm sure other couples will appreciate any help you might give on this subject.
Dear Mrs. A.:
Take comfort in the fact that none of us is privileged to see an exact blueprint of the future. But I agree wholeheartedly that we should heed the "educated guesses" that result from surveys taken in certain areas of living.
The cheerful aspects of your particular future picture are: your home will be clear; your husband's pension will provide a comfortable income; he is, apparently, well covered by medical insurance.
Since you are primarily concerned with the cost of illness in years to come, the first question is: why aren't you covered by insurance? If health is the reason, did you realize that some major medical plans today do not have a health requirement for applicants? And are you aware that some new policies offer protection after 65, with a guaranteed renewable clause? This latter provision may mean that the premium can be raised at renewal at the discretion of the company. Read the fine print for the exact interpretation.
In trying to estimate adequate protection, you might be guided by these averages compiled by the Health Information Foundation on individuals over 65 years old (with an average life expectancy up to 79 years):
$177 a year per person, broken down this way:
Hospital care, $49; physicians, $55; dentists, $10 (this is lowest "dental cost" age since age 5); medicines, $42; all other medical expenses, $21.
This shows that the basic yearly medical expenses could average $354 for a couple, or around $5,000 over the 14-year life expectancy period after 65.
Another estimate — by the National Council on Aging — points out that one out of six individuals has an average hospital cost of $528 per year.
If you want to cover all angles, why not use the maximum figure given above for medical expenses, as your yardstick for estimating future medical costs? For instance, use the one-in-every-six figure — $528 — for hospital bills per person per year. That's $1,056 per year for the two of you. Or around $15,000 over the 14-year period. If you want a more specific breakdown, multiply the figures given by the Health Information Foundation, by three — in order to itemize each type of expected expense.
Remember that one of your greatest safeguards as you get older is preventive medicine.
Many people are hospitalized because of their own sheer neglect of regular physical check-ups. There aren't any figures that I know of that show how much expense could be avoided by regular visits to the doctor or a clinic. But the total would probably stagger you all.

TAFFY'S TIPS

MAIL CALL
Dear Taffy:
My mother is always correcting my grammar and gets angry when I use some of the expressions my friends use. I am an "A" student in English and know what is correct, but must I always use every word correctly all the time?
SINCERELY,
SPEECH STUDENT
Dear Speech Student:
Good speech requires lots of practice. And you will find that you can't get enough practice to feel completely at ease and self-assured with every word in your very complex language. One of the most valuable things you can learn is how to use the Queen's English and use it well! Don't start adding clichés to your speech. These over-used phrases stick and you will find yourself using them more than you realize.
Keep happy,

Democratic Vice Presidency Talk Like 'Candidate-of-Month' Club

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — Statehouse Democrats and others continue to speculate avidly about the probable identity of President Lyndon Johnson's vice presidential choice, but are getting used to the idea that nobody is likely to have much to say about the selection except LBJ — who won't be saying for quite a while.

One prominent Democrat of this state who has made soundings in Washington lately returned with the impression, as he tells it, that the president will probably organize a "Candidate of the Month Club", with a new name and face in the limelight at intervals until the August nomination. The reference was to the recent Johnson decisions to give prestigious assignments to Robert Kennedy and Sargent Shriver.

Among Wisconsin Democrats, there are well-defined leanings — for Sen. Hubert Humphrey, on the one hand, and for a member of the Kennedy family, on the other.

Committee Head

Philip Kuehn, the two-time Republican nominee for governor who started his career as Milwaukee County Republican committee chairman a dozen years ago, was sought as a "peace" candidate for the chairmanship of the committee this year, but declined the bid.

David Stearns, who was chosen without opposition to run the local organization in this campaign year, has some formidable critics in the county, in part derived from the fact that he is a militant spokesman for the party's right wing.

Urged on by employee organizations, the Wisconsin Telephone Co. and others in the field appear likely to ask for a review of the public service commission ruling against active and retired employee discounts for telephone service. The PSC ruling was one of the unusual decisions rendered in recent years. The regulators decided abruptly to act under a statute 12 years old, and when they did so they produced three different opinions explaining the reasons for the act.

Russell F. Lewis, who had spent 49 years in the public school program of Wisconsin when he retired from the office of the state superintendent of public instruction a year ago, is now a consultant on the staff of the School of Education at the University of Wisconsin.

Corning Grumbles

Some Republicans are beginning to grumble about the habit of George Corning, the state tax commissioner, of speaking out on state government policy and political matters. His job is administrative, they say.

Corning is probably picking up some of the habits of his former chief, John Gronouski, who is now mixing politics with his work as head of the U.S. postoffice department without any attempt at concealment.

But there are Republicans who note that Corning has not yet been secured in his appointive job through confirmation of the Republican state senate and that in this new campaign year the Republicans may become even more wary about such confirmations in a Democratic administration than they were earlier in this legislative term.

Uninhabited Rooms

Visitors at the state capitol are currently seeing something that hasn't been shown there in 30 or 40 years — uninhabited rooms.

The transfer of men and women and furniture from some of the big capitol wings to the new state office building on the west side of Madison has been virtually finished. Most of the vacated capitol rooms will ultimately be occupied, but with more generous spacing arrangements than have been possible in the 60-year-old building in many years.

The capitol press corps is now being urged to choose a site for a press work room, something that officials declined to consider although repeatedly proposed during the last quarter of a century as one example of the new freedom in state government housing.

Replace Hill

The board of regents of state colleges will hold its next meeting at the end of the month and one of the items on its agenda will be the request of Gov. Reynolds and the Coordinating Committee for Higher Education for a reconsideration of the recent replacement of Robert DeZonia with Jim Dan Hill of Superior State College as the colleges staff director on the coordinating committee.

But there is scarcely a chance, according to reliable accounts, that the state college board members will change their minds.

One sign: Karl Meyer, chosen by the board to replace Hill as head of the state college at Superior, has sold his Madison home and is now preparing to take over as head of the Superior campus.

On a usual morning, Johnson is in his oval office about 9:30 a.m., ready for appointments.

With many presidents, the appointment schedule has been semisacred. Visitors have moved in and out according to the timetable.

Resignation May Lead to Guidance Clinic Revisions

Operation of Outagamie County Unit Subject of Executive Study

Major revisions in the operation of the Outagamie County Community Guidance Clinic and a doctor.

Eggert called for an expanded board of control to encompass a greater cross-section of the community and to divide the workload. He suggested the board have more clergymen, a county board supervisor, the county board chairman, the business director, and representatives of police agencies and the courts.

Eggert met with the executive committee this morning and said the greatest share of the control board work is being done by the three county employees assigned to the board.

County Board Chairman Alvin Egger questioned the need of county employees to be assigned to the board and said he will raise the question with the clinic board this afternoon. The clinic furnishes $22,113 for the clinic's operation.

Eggert said it would be advisable for the county to have members of the government on the clinic board to monitor the county funds.

Van Straten, an elected official, turned in his formal resignation last month. He stated he felt his position should be rotated. Miss Freeman said she could not formally resign the position because she is directed by the board of supervisors to serve in the capacity as board member. However, she said, the added responsibilities have detracted from her duties as county nurse.

The remainder of the board is composed of an attorney, a housewife, wife of a clergyman, a clergyman, a businessman and a doctor.

County Health Unit Recommended for Best Local Service

United Community Plan Outlines Outagamie Program at Forum

A report recommending an employ a health officer and the county health department as the staff presently employed by the best way to serve the needs of several units which would be incorporated into the county health department. The budget for the second year should provide for additional personnel needed for the department to provide service for the entire county, the report said.

The report, which outlines a concrete plan for a county health department, was developed by the public health services committee of the UCS research and planning department. It is the outgrowth of several years of study by various community organizations, and used data gathered by the Appleton League of Women Voters in its study of health services in 1961.

The proposed county health department would have a qualified physician health officer as director, if possible. Initially its staff would incorporate the county nurses, the Appleton city health department staff and the Kaukauna city nurse, with additional personnel to be added later.

A budget of $91,300 for the first year of operation and $132,700 for the second year was proposed.

The unwieldy county system of 31 local boards of health, each with its own health officer, whose training, duties and concern vary widely from unit to unit, is not efficient or economical, the UCS report stated.

The report recommended the Appleton Board of Education continue its school nursing program and other school districts in the county be encouraged to develop their own school nursing programs.

Final version of the report, which the committee has worked on for more than a year, will be submitted to the UCS board for approval after consideration of the reaction at the forum. The board will be responsible for implementation of the report.

Gave Report

Mrs. Leonard Weiss, chairman of the UCS public health services committee, presented the report to the forum.

The report recommended the Outagamie County Board pass a resolution creating a county health department, and the county board select a board of health consisting of one county supervisor, two physicians, one dentist and three persons interested in protecting the health of their community.

It recommended the county board of health prepare, for approval of the county board, the budget for the initial year and

Plan Commission Rejects Bid For Apartment Work Zoning

Appleton Vote Kills Plans for Cherry Court, Memorial Drive

Appleton Plan Commission to-morrow rejected a request for rezoning the southwest corner of the Cherry Court and Memorial Drive. Killing a proposed $150,000 efficiency apartment project.

The commission unanimously decided the two lots should remain single family and not be made into a multiple district.

City Planner Walter Rasmussen, Ald. Harold Hannemann (10th) and several residents in the area who signed five petitions opposed the request.

General consensus was apartment construction would not fit into the pattern in the neighborhood. Homeowners said it would deflate property value.

A spokesman for the owner of the property requested for rezoning, who also represented the developer proposing to erect the modern apartment building, said it would protect existing properties in the neighborhood.

Two Lots Left

"These are the only two lots left in the 1928 plat. We feel the apartment building will provide a buffer zone between existing fine homes and the ravine situation in the area," the spokesman said.

He said the lots could be sold for single family residence but there would be no assurance of the type of homes to be erected.

The proposed apartment, a two-story brick affair, would have off-street parking and serve people working in the business complex in that area according to the developer.

Rasmussen said the property is at the Outagamie-Winnebago County line, and while some industrial and commercial establishments were in the area, they were separated from existing residential district by the ravine.

A dense residential usage proposed (15 or 16 units) could be considered an intrusion on a project on which Dr. Gilbert has been working in cooperation with Dr. J. Bruce Bracken of the Lawrence physics department.

Valley GOP Caucuses Are Scheduled

Republican county and district caucuses have been scheduled throughout the Fox Valley.

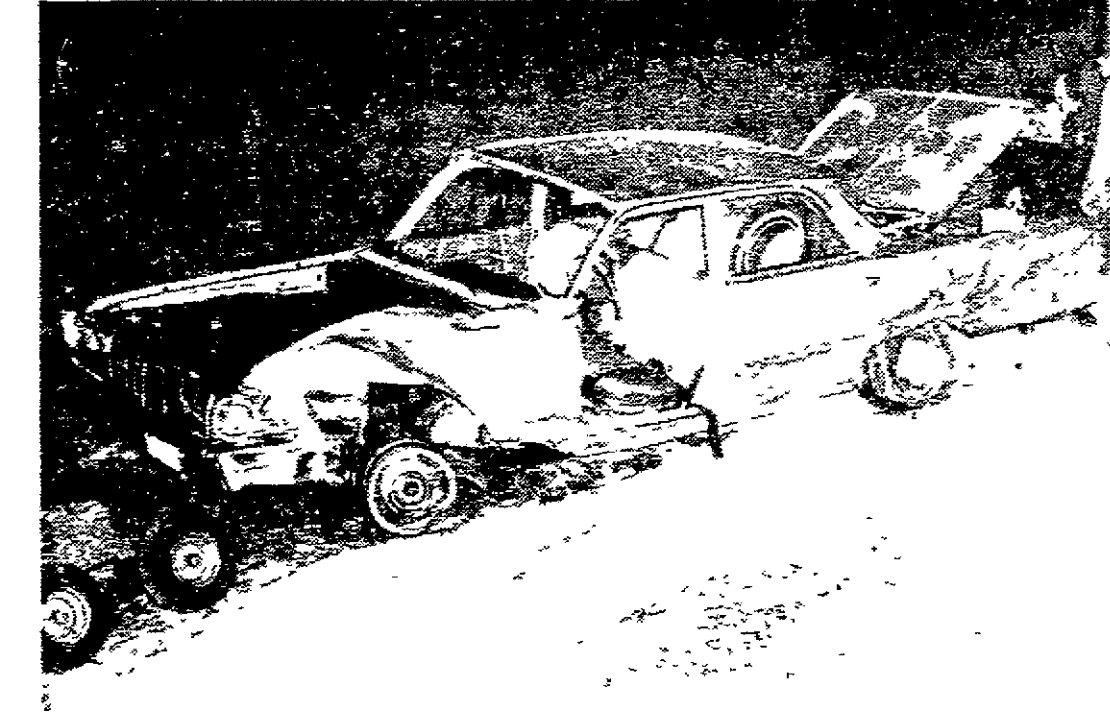

Outagamie County caucus will be March 31 at 7:30 p.m. in the courthouse annex: Calumet County, courthouse supervisor's room, Chilton, 8 p.m. Tuesday; Shawano County, courthouse, Shawano, 8 p.m. Wednesday; Winnebago County, tentatively scheduled for the Legion on the Lake, Oshkosh, 8 p.m. March 9.

Eighth District caucus will be April 6 in Green Bay; 7th district, April 5, Merrill; and 6th district, March 31, Retlaw Hotel, Fond du Lac.

Dr. Paul Gilbert to Give Talk at Lawrence

Dr. Paul Gilbert will speak at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Lawrence College Science Hall on "Walden: Governor Stanford's Farm."

A qualitative description of schleiren phenomena will be given, together with a progress report on an attempt to apply the method of schleiren interferometry to the determination of velocity profiles in a liquid-to-liquid jet, an NSF supported project on which Dr. Gilbert has been working in cooperation with Dr. J. Bruce Bracken of the Lawrence physics department.

Plan Commission Postpones Action On Request to Allow Gasoline Tank

Rasmussen Says Zoning Change Would be 'Highly Undesirable, Recommends Denial'

Installation of a 300-gallon underground gasoline tank on Riv-firm said the rezoning request outside Greenhouse property has been prompted when the city become center of a rezoning problem.

As a result, the request of the firm, 1236 E. Pacific St., for rezoning of the greenhouse decided property to be rezoned from a single family residential to commercial-light manufacturing, was held over indefinitely.

The fire department issued a flammable permit to the firm, but it did not receive a permit for its installation from the city.

City Planner Walter Rasmussen recommended the request for rezoning would be "highly undesirable in this location".

Rasmussen said he did not argue the appropriateness of the greenhouse in a residential district. It has been there many years.

Twin City Youths Share On Visits to Churches

NEENAH — One God — one Country — one of the most precious privileges — to worship God as one sees fit. Understanding this is a basic ingredient of Brotherhood the world over.

This understanding was enriched Sunday night when 40 youth from the First Methodist Church, the Whiting Baptist Church and St. Paul Lutheran Church, Neenah, together with youth from St. Mary's Catholic Church, Menasha, visited each other.

Explanation

The boys and girls, high school age, traveled by bus to the four churches, where the pastor or an assistant pastor escorted them into the sanctuary, to the altar, explaining the meaning of each church's traditional beliefs, forms of the eucharist, liturgy of the worship, a few doctrinal matters and many other things.

"I believe each boy and girl strengthened his or her own religious beliefs Sunday," commented the Rev. David Kiefer, assistant at St. Mary's. "They wanted information and they were given it in a very forthright manner at each church we visited. This is the kind of knowledge which creates understanding."

"There was an abundance of warm enthusiasm throughout the trip," recalled the Rev. Arthur Goetz, assistant at St. Paul's Lutheran Church. "Convictions were strengthened and many avenues of awareness were opened for the first time."

New Experience

"No minds were changed insofar as their religious practice is concerned," said the Rev. Carl J. Smith. "I feel certain that some of the boys and girls had never heard a minister before. The exchange of knowledge about bishops, what a synod is, what a diocese is, the meaning of the Lord's Supper, the confessional explained — and dozens of other terms, I am sure, will cultivate respect and understanding for the other fellow's beliefs."

"I think the absence of an altar was a point of concern, possibly in our church," volunteered the Rev. K. Aart Van Dam, Whiting Memorial Baptist. "They showed considerable interest in our method and point-of-view about baptism. I think this trip together brought out differences which at the beginning we didn't even know existed. The questions were sharp, the questioners alert — they reflected their own careful teaching and their basic desire to know is a challenge to every one of us."

Will Remodel Store Fronts In Menasha

Project Is Planned To Begin April 1; 2 Firms Involved

MENASHA — The remodeling of two store fronts in downtown Menasha — will begin April 1, according to Sheldon Wilms, designer for the project.

The April 1 project will include refacing and remodeling of Morton Drug Store and Curt Smith Clothing Store.

Wilms said the buildings will be designed so that the fronts will be opened up to put the entire stores on display.

A small show window will be installed at Mortons and the entrance widened so that the store is displayed.

The buildings are owned by the Masonic Lodge, which is financing the project.

The remodeling will include only the lower floor.

The project will be a "dressing up" of nearly half of a block on Main Street along with construction of a new First National Bank next door.

Construction of the bank also is planned some time this spring.

New Lawrence Group Chamber Orchestra Program Quality High

BY DON VORPAHL
Sunday night's debut concert by the Lawrence Chamber Orchestra in Harper Hall at the Lawrence College Music-Drama Center verified what we have been told about the new string and wind group, that it is dedicated to meeting the challenge of diverse musical styles and colors through flexible instrumentation and a willingness to explore a variety of scores.

Conductor Kenneth Byler put together a fresh program of fine quality, directed his 26 musicians through a lively performance, and topped things off with a solo appearance of his own in the Hindemith "Music of Mourning for Viola and Strings."

Guest conductor LaVahn Maesch, director of Lawrence Conservatory, took Byler's place at the helm in this latter work.

Sensitive Playing
Byler's student musicians showed off some of their most sensitive string playing in a number of performances. Their scores were generally well tuned, rhythmically sound and enthusiastic. From the several participating woodwinds came some very tuneful and moving lines, particularly in the flute and oboe sections. We learned that the group has a good number of underclassmen which would make for a bright future for this successor to the smaller Lawrence Little Symphony.

A Pachelbel "Chaconne for String Orchestra" was Byler's opening choice. Its dramatic structure and intricate changes of pace were handled firmly chiefly of a "complaint-answering" nature, the report said. The increase in the number of health personnel has not kept up with rapid population growth, it said.

The report noted many organizations and interested groups have engaged in detailed surveys of the health needs and facilities in Outagamie County during the past 13 years. Some have been instrumental in procuring better health services, it said, but each problem was considered on its own merit without reference to a general policy embracing the health of the whole county.

The report listed the seven major public health areas as vital statistics, environmental sanitation, laboratory service, maternal, infant and child health, public health education, communicable disease and control, and chronic disease and adult health.

Four plans considered by the UCS committee for provision of adequate public health services were a county health commission, a county health department, a city-county health department and a multiple county or metropolitan health department.

Proposed Staff
The proposed staff for the first year would include the director, four nurses, a chief of environmental sanitation, two sanitarians, a registrar of vital statistics, three clerical workers, a veterinarian part time, and a laboratory aide part time.

Proposed staff additions for the second year would be a director of nurses, two additional nurses, one more sanitarian, a bacteriologist or laboratory technician, a laboratory technician aide and one more clerical worker.

Full-time public health workers in the county now include two county nurses, the Kaukauna city nurse, one nurse at Riverview Sanatorium and the Appleton health department staff, which consists of a part-time medical health officer, three sanitarians, one public health nurse, one deputy registrar and one part-time meat inspector. There are no county sanitarians, and the county is served by three state sanitarians who also must serve seven other counties.

Total Cost
The 31 local boards of health are served by 20 part-time health officers — 13 physicians and seven laymen. Total expenditures for public health in Outagamie County in 1962 were $71,072.

Under the present system, Appleton has fairly adequate service, but Outagamie County health services, except for the public health nursing services, are

Democrats May Set Limit on Delegates

Caucus May Allow No More Than One Representative Per County Chapter

BY JAMES BARTELT
Post-Crescent News Service
GREEN BAY — Eighth District Democrats will receive a recommendation that no more than one national convention delegate comes from any single county when they meet Tuesday night at Hotel Northland for a delegate election.

The recommendation was framed by the district executive committee, composed of county chairmen and district officers, at a meeting in Green Bay Saturday night. If more than one person from a single county is among the leaders in the balloting, only the leader from the county would be named a delegate.

Leaders Coming
The meeting will elect four delegates, two with one vote each and two with one-half vote each. The delegates will go to the April primary ballot, probably pledged to President Johnson through the device of a favorite son, expected to be Gov. John Reynolds.

Reynolds, Patrick Lucey, new national committeeman, and J. Louis Hanson, state party chairman, are scheduled to talk to the meeting. Other state leaders expected are Stanley Zuckerman and Howard Hazen, of Reynolds' staff, and James Buckely, deputy state chairman.

In the background of the district gathering will be a question of whether feelings about Robert McCormick, district chairman, will again break out into the open.

A group of Outagamie County Democrats last week said they intended to try to force a vote on a resolution tabled at a Jan. 10 caucus calling upon McCormick to resign.

The resolution did not come before the executive committee meeting Saturday night, and by-laws call for all resolutions heading for a district caucus to have been before the committee. The other parliamentary view would be that the committee did not have to act because the resolution is on the table from the January meeting.

January Proposal
The resolution was offered in January by a group of Marilyn St., who arrived at the nettle county Democrats who church about 12:30 a.m. to participate in the perpetual adorning about the Reynolds' appointment of Raymond Mattison to a sheriff vacancy over the tified police.

Appleton Not Eligible for State Waterfront Grant

A recent letter to the City of Appleton that it may be eligible for a state grant in planning a waterfront development in the Lutz Park and Yacht Club area turned out to be a false alarm.

This was the indication today at a meeting of the city plan commission, which had requested City Planner Walter Rasmussen to check into the matter.

The letter came from the Wisconsin Conservation Department at Madison.

Rasmussen reported that in checking with Richard Harris at the district conservation office at Oshkosh, Harris wrote that Appleton's proposed project would not qualify under the aid program.

As a result, the commission directed that plans for a marine development along the Fox River be discussed with a consultant the city is hiring to prepare a comprehensive plan for Appleton.

The commission feels the waterfront development should be included in the city's long-range plan.

Try This Mirror Writing for Fun, Amusement With Guests

BY CAPPY DICK

This is a party stunt called "Mirror Writing." As each guest tries his hand at it, the others will find his scribbled writing a source of great amusement.

The problem each guest faces is to keep it from sliding around too readily. The writer won't be able to hold the paper with his hand because he will be holding the mirror.

The party guest who is trying the stunt sits at the table with a pencil in his hand. He holds the mirror so it will reflect the hand, pencil and paper.

The guest must now write four or five words while watching his writing hand in the mirror. He is not permitted to watch his writing in the usual way.

The best writing job should be rewarded with a prize -- perhaps an extra helping of dessert.

Incidentally, you don't have to wait until you have a party to try this stunt. Get out a mirror and try it yourself, then test your family.

Words Often Misused: It is better to use UNDERHAND, in- stead of UNDERHANDED, of- ten heard "He is an underhand baseball pitcher," and, "He is accused of underhand dealings with the enemy."

Often Mispronounced: Ocean- ic. Pronounce oh-she-an-ick, principal accent on third syl- lable; and not "oh-si-an-ick."

Often Misspelled: Nauseate; observe the five vowels.

Word Study: "Use a word three times and it is yours." Let us increase our vocabulary by mastering one word each day.

Today's word: IMMANENCE; inheritance; an indwelling. (Ac- cent first syllable). "She was conscious of the immanence of God."

Waterloo Decisions Bobcats in Overtime, Clinches Tie for Title

Green Bay Sextet Rallies From 6-2 Deficit; Loses, 7-6

WATERLOO, Iowa — Waterloo has clinched a tie for its first U. S. Hockey championship and it couldn't have come in a more spectacular fashion.

Defensesman Bud MacRae poked an 8-foot rebound shot past Green Bay goalie Jim Mattson in the second sudden-death overtime period before 4,855 fans at Waterloo auditorium Sunday afternoon to give the Black Hawks a 7-6 victory over the defending champion Bobcats.

If Green Bay should win all seven remaining games and the Hawks lose its last four, the Wisconsin club could earn a tie for the top spot in the 4-team circuit.

Saturday night, the Bobcats had edged Rochester, 2-1, to keep faint title hopes alive. MacRae's goal, 2:52 into the second extra 10-minute stanza, offset a tremendous comeback by the Bobcats trailing 6-2; they blinked the red light behind Waterloo's net four times in the final 12 minutes to force the overtime.

Paul Coppie, playing the second game with Green Bay since his return from a tour of duty with the U.S. Olympic hockey squad, started the comeback for the visitors 8:12 into the final period.

He hit from 25 feet away. Five minutes later John Ivanitz intercepted a Waterloo pass and backhanded the puck past Waterloo goalie Jim Mattson from 20 feet out. Big Darryl Winnchuk accounted for the final two Bobcat scores.

The Black Hawks outscored Green Bay, 2-1, in both of the first two periods to take a 4-2 lead into the final 20 minute session. Quick goals by Butch Leskum and Smith made it 6-2 at the 4:19 mark and many of the fans headed for home.

Diminutive Dave Swick and Coppie traded goals during the first 15 minutes of the contest before Smith beat Mattson from five feet to send Waterloo to the dressing room during the first intermission with a 2-1 lead.

Finley Says He Will be At Controls

BOSTON (AP)—The American League lost the World Series, the All-Star Game and the attendance last season. Now comes a Feb. 21 summit meeting when fellow owners decide whether to lose Charles O. Finley.

Time twice has run out on deadlines for Athletics' owner Finley to sign a lease with Kansas City officials.

So far, there's no agreement reached or action taken. Mid-night Saturday passed and Finley's adamant two - years - or nothing lease stand appeared to stymie the AL as effectively as Sandy Koufax had the pennant-winning Yankees.

President Joe Cronin took the first step Sunday by announcing the Friday meeting to which Kansas City officials are invited.

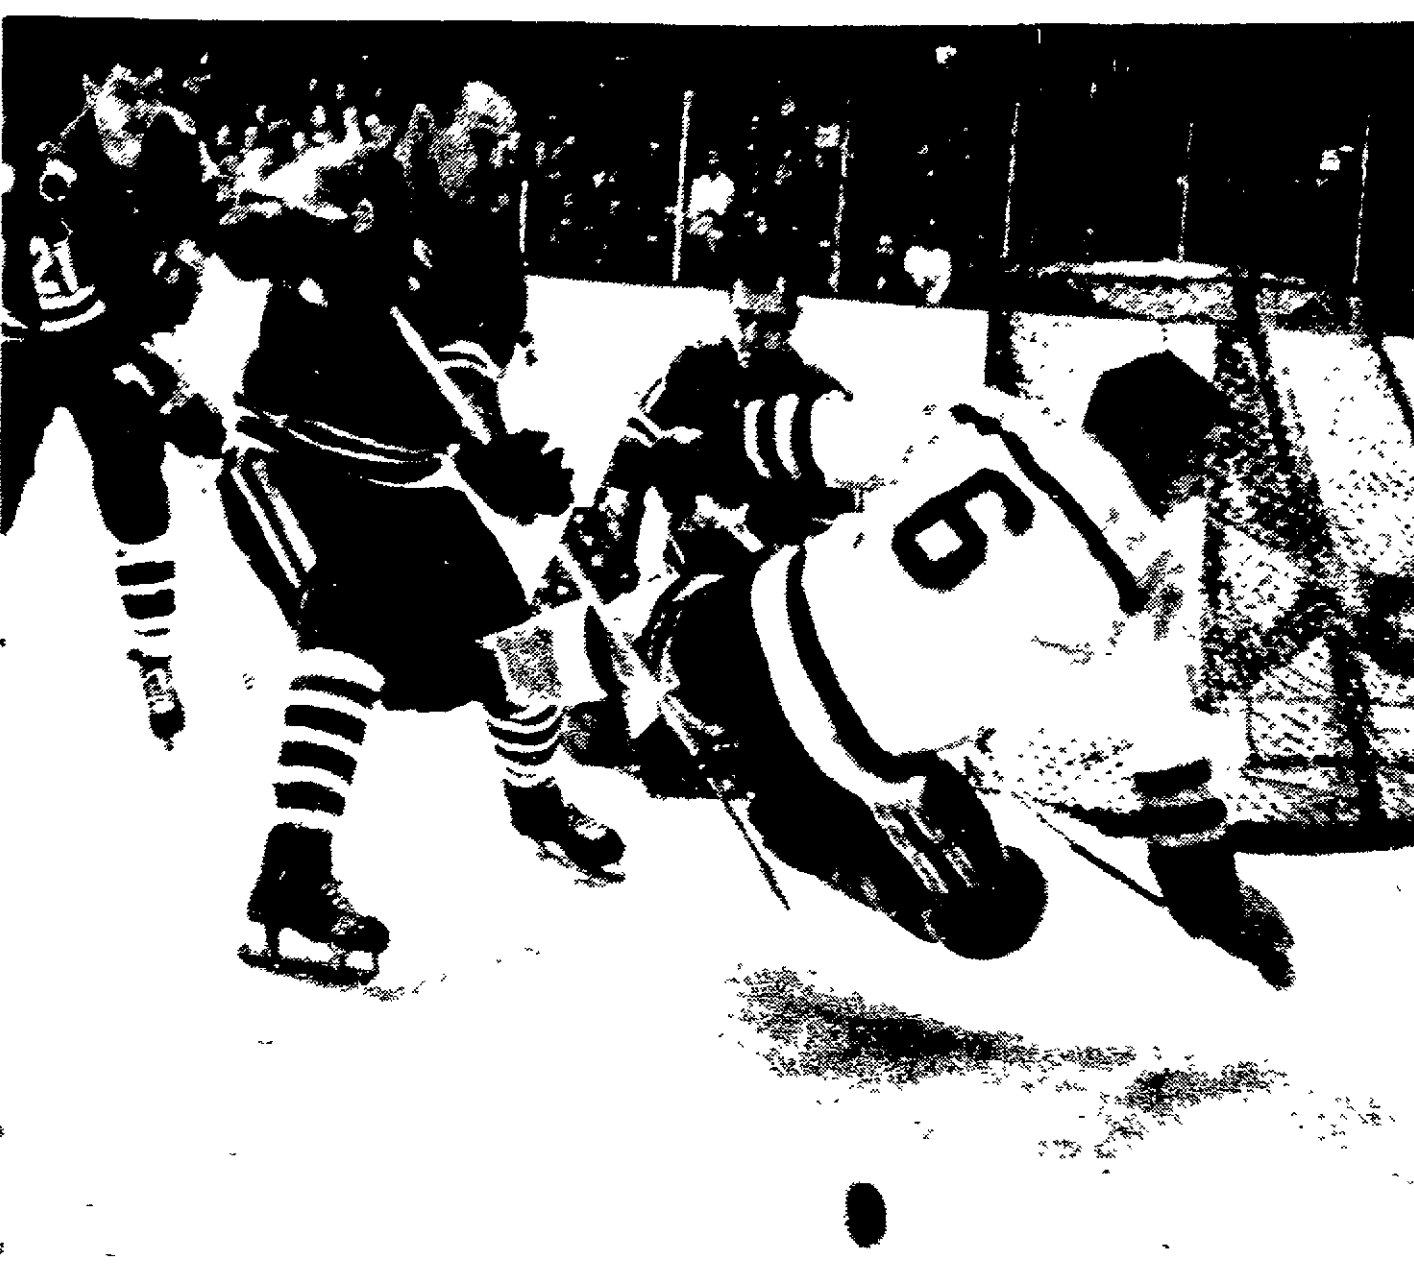

Carry Out Threat Cronin hints the owners may be ready to carry out their threat to oust Finley, made at the last owners' meeting Jan. 16 when Finley's request to move the franchise to Louisville was killed 9-1.

Finley reaffirmed Sunday night he would be at the controls when Kansas City opens the season.

Since the previous owners' meeting, Finley has threatened a law suit if the league attempts to take away his franchise and retained famed trial lawyer Louis Nizer.

Finley, who also made a commitment to move his team to Oakland and may make the proposal at the forthcoming meeting, did have this to say: "The ball club never has been for sale. It's not on sale today, nor will it be tomorrow. I would not sell the ball club for $10 million. I'll be in Boston for the meeting Friday."

Finley's reference to not selling concerned an alleged offer to call for $7 million, which he termed a "manufactured lie."

Boston Bruins' Ted Green (1) takes a header as he flies past the net in a first-period scoring attempt against the Chicago Black Hawks at the Chicago Stadium Sunday night. Going after the puck in the left foreground is Black Hawks' Pierre Pilote. At the left is Stan Mikita and down in back is goalie Glen Hall of the Black Hawks. (AP Wirephoto)

Jenssen Leaps Record 319 At Westby

Norwegian Tops Balfanz' Mark By One Foot

WESTBY, Wis. (AP) — Matz Jenssen, a 19-year-old exchange student from Norway, splashed through a slushy takeoff and stretched out for a record 319 foot leap in Sunday's 41st annual jumping tournament sponsored by the Snowflake Ski Club.

While Jenssen, of Oslo, who is studying economics at the University of Utah, was unbothered by the soft snow at the slide takeoff and on the outrun on the 90-meter hill, others skipped a second jump because of the conditions resulting from 40-degree temperatures.

There were 39 falls, the most serious sending Ron Richard, 18, of Ishpeming, Mich., to a hospital with a concussion and a fractured ankle. He spilled head over heels while landing. Jenssen's record leap, on his first effort, was a foot better than the old mark set a year ago by John Balfanz of Minneapolis. It was three feet short of the North American record of 322 feet set last year by Gene Kotlarek of Duluth, Minn., at Steamboat Springs, Colo. Both Balfanz and Kotlarek jumped this year with the United States Olympic team and have not returned from Europe.

Takes Second Place Jenssen's record leap, and a second jump of 251 feet, gave him second place in Class A. The top spot in the meet, watched by a crowd of 22,000, went to Jacques Charland, 34, of Three Rivers, Ont. He had jumps of 296 and 250 feet and topped Jenssen on style.

The second jumps for all Class A entrants were shorter because they started four meters further down the slide. The change was ordered because the riders threatened to outjump the safe landing point and because of softening snow at the top of the slide.

Class B honors went to Ron Jacobson of Madison, who earned the meet's best score of 211.7 points while jumping 235 and 238 feet. Paul Jacobs of Iron Mountain, Mich., topped the juniors with leaps of 254 and 234 feet. Jack Pauly of Minneapolis led the veterans with jumps of 232 and 243 feet.

GUADALAJARA, Mexico — Alfredo Camelo Urbina, 134, Mexico, outscored Gene Gresham, 134, Detroit, 16. PESARO, Italy — Guisepe Linzola, 135, Italy, outscored Nevio Carli, 137, Trieste, 12.

New York Mets Play Intra-Squad

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The New York Mets played the first major league intrasquad game of the spring training season Sunday, and were unable to beat themselves. The game ended in a 2-2 tie.

Two young pitching prospects were the stars of the workout. Jerry Dean Hinsley, 18, faced six batters and did not allow a run to reach base. Dick Selma, 20, was touched for two hits, but made four assists while pitching to six men.

Hinsley was drafted by the Mets from the Pirates' minor league system. He had been held out of competition by Pittsburgh in an effort to keep him out of the Mets' camp. Selma is a product of the Fresno, Calif., high school, which sent Jim Mackey of Cincinnati and Dick Eversworth of the Chicago Cubs both 20-game winners last season, to the majors. Selma was 12-6 for the Mets' Salinas team in the California State League in 1963.

Bodies of Ken Hubbs, Companion Recovered

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Shock and deep sorrow were still felt today over the death of Chicago Cubs infielder Ken Hubbs, whose bright future was snuffed out forever in an airplane crash last week.

He was only 22, the National League's Rookie of the Year in 1962 when he set two major league fielding records at second base.

Last Thursday he took off from the airport at this central Utah community where his brother Keith had gone to school at Brigham Young University as pallbearers. Hubbs' team-mates on the Colton Little League championship team of 1954 will be honorary pallbearers. The wreckage of their plane

Maracaibo Open Won by Art Wall

MARACAIBO, Venezuela (AP) — Veteran Art Wall, a former Masters champion from Pecora Manor, Pa., came from one stroke off the pace Sunday and took a three-stroke victory in the Maracaibo Open Golf Tournament, first stop on the Caribbean tour.

Wall struck a final round 71, one under par, and finished with a 280 for the 72 holes over the Maracaibo Country Club course. Defending champion Jim Ferrer, entered the final round 75 and finished second at 283.

Wall's victory was a surprise, as he had never won a professional tournament before. He is 34 years old and has been playing golf for 15 years.

Berra Tries Writing; Assures Fans Yanks Will Keep Winning

Yogi Realizes Other Clubs Are Much Improved

BY YOGI BERRA
New York Yankees

NEW YORK (AP)—Well this is a new experience for me. Not just managing the New York Yankees, but writing a story like this before we've even assembled our squad at Fort Lauderdale for spring training. But I'm game if you are.

In the first place, let me reassure Yankee fans that I intend to continue the winning ways of Ralph Houk who managed three winners in three seasons.

That's a pretty good record. But I think my club is every bit as good as the one that copped the American League pennant in 1963.

I realize several clubs in our league have improved over the winter but I'd like to point out that we suffered an amazing number of injuries to key players last year. I don't expect that to happen again.

Deep in Pitchers

We think we're knee deep in starting pitchers with Whitey Ford, Jim Bouton, Al Downing, Ralph Terry, Stan Williams and possibly Bill Stafford. We have good young relief pitchers in Hal Reniff, Steve Hamilton and maybe Tom Metcalfe.

Joe Peptide, a question a year ago as replacement for Bill Skowron, made it big as a regular. Joe is only 23 and has a great future before him. The rest of the infield—Bobby Richardson, Tony Kubek and Cleve Boyer, plus Phil Linz as the chief utility man—gives us the best infield strength in baseball. I think.

With a healthier Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris, plus Tom Tresh and Hector Lopez, our outfield should have power and defense. Mantle and Maris missed 169 games between them last year.

With the league's most valuable player in Elston Howard. I think our catching should be as good as it was last year. John Blanchard should move up to make a first rate replacement as catcher, outfielder or pinch hitter.

Could Use Catcher

We could use an extra catcher to replace a fellow by the name of Berra, who's "hung up." It could be young bonus rookie Jake Gibbs, the former All-American football player. Last year was Jake's first as a catcher, but I think he's going to make it sooner or later. He's our type of player.

Among our prospects in addition to Gibbs, we have Elvio Jimenez, a right-hand hitting outfielder who had a big minor league season in 1963. He's the younger brother of Kansas City's Manny Jimenez. And then we have second baseman Pedro Gonzalez, a good hitter, and we think he might help us in the outfield, too.

Left-handed pitcher Bob Meyer is a prospect I want to take a good look at and, of course, I'm not forgetting veteran Bud

Daley who underwent arm surgery last April.

I'll probably keep one or two first-year men to assure future development. We have Archie Moore, an outfielder, and Chet Trail, a young infielder.

I think every team in the league is improved. There are no soft touches. Just look at the Athletics' new power with Rocky Colavito and Jim Gentile.

The Minnesota Twins have tremendous power; the White Sox have come up with five young players; Baltimore has made good deals and I think my old friend Hank Bauer will do a fine job.

And Detroit is the most improved club in the league. The Tigers made excellent deals and should be tough. Cleveland has more power and a developing young club.

As for me, I'm enthusiastic as well as optimistic.

GREEN BAY — Premontre's occasionally potent offense collapsed Sunday afternoon as the Cadets spluttered away a chance for a second-place tie in the Fox Valley Catholic Conference by handing Lourdes of Oshkosh a 55-49 win in the league's last game of regular season play.

The victory gives the fast-rising Knights a 10-4 record and a share of second place with Marinette Central. The Cadets dropped to fourth with a 9-5 mark.

Premontre and the Knights, usually two of the loop's best shooting teams didn't show it Sunday. Premontre hit on only 18 of 64 shots for 28 per cent and the Knights bagged 18 of 71 for 25 per cent. In past games, each club has been near the 40 per cent mark.

Pacing the Cadets in scoring was Mike Feller with 20 points; on eight field goals and four free throws. Don Sheinoha added 10 markers for Premontre.

Lourdes was led by 5-9 junior Steve Schumacher who had 20, with 10 coming via the free throw line. Tom Baum added 13. Both teams had 18 field goals, but the Knights hit 19 of 29 free throws while Premontre had 13 out of 21.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Jacky Cupit could be the idol of all college freshmen today.

He just knocked off the senior big man on campus.

It happened in the $30,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament and admittedly a few years after Cupit and Rex Baxter left the University of Houston. But it happened.

Cupit shot a one-under-par 71 in the final round for a 274 total, 14-under-par, to capture the $4,000 first prize in the Tucson event over the 6,917 yard desert course of the 49ers Country Club.

Baxter, of Amarillo, Tex., took second with 69 and 276, collecting $2,700.

When Baxter was the national collegiate golf champion at Houston, Cupit was a freshman, albeit only a year younger than the champ. Now at 26, Cupit has won his third PGA tournament trail title, adding the Tucson diadem to the Canadian Open of 1961 and the Western Open of 1962.

Bruce Crampton of Australia finished third at Tucson as the old man among the top finishers. The 28-year-old Crampton posted a 69 and 278 total.

Lopez Thinks Chisox Have Title Potential

Must Rely on Youth for Chance; Pitching Lauded

BY AL LOPEZ
TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—I think the Chicago White Sox will be good enough in 1964 to win the American League pennant. Which means, to beat the Yankees. Whoever wins the pennant is going to have to beat the Yankees.

We're going with youth again in '64, even more youth than the team we had last year when it surprised everybody by finishing second. Most experts confined us to the second division.

We had the rookie of the year last season in Gary Peters, who won 19 games and had a 2.33 earned run average. And we had the runner-up in third baseman Pete Ward, who was our best every-day player with a 2.95 average, 84 runs batted in and 22 home runs.

It could be that we'll have two more contenders this year in infielders Don Buford and pitcher Fritz Ackley. We traded Buford can take over the second base job. He was the International League's top player and most valuable. A switch pitcher, he led the league in five departments, including hits, runs, doubles, stolen bases and batting.

Buford played third base for Indianapolis but we had him switched to second in Puerto Rico and I'm told he looked pretty good.

The rest of the infield is solid. Ron Hansen will be back at short. He led the league's shortstops in runs batted in with 67 and was the top fielder at his position with only 13 errors. Joe Cunningham, the first baseman, was out with a broken collarbone for three months last year but he should be sound again. We have Tommy McCraw to back him up.

The outfield should be better if only for the continued improvement of Dave Nicholson. Floyd Robinson, our right fielder, was bothered by injuries last year and his average slumped below .300. I look for improvement from him, too. Center field is in the capable hands of Mike Hershberger and Jim Landis.

I expect improved catching punch from J. C. Martin and Camilo Carreon. Both are young and hit better in the second half of last season than the first half. Al Weiss, a switch hitter, is our No. 1 utility man who can play second, third or short.

I believe we have the best pitching in the league. Our staff was the only one with an ERA of under three. It was 2.97. Peters and Juan Pizarro were one-two in the league. John Buzhardt, out five weeks with an injury, was 2.43 and a 9-4 record. Ray Herbert, the veteran of the staff, had seven shutouts. Then we have Joe Horlen. Ed Fisher and Ackley as starters. Dave DeBusschere, our bonus right-hander, figures to improve. Other attractive youngsters include Bruce Howard, Fred Talbot, Frank Kreutzer, Camilo Estevis and Jim Olden.

WIAA Claims TV Proposal 'Deplorable'

NCAA, NIT to Begin Selection of Teams for Post-Season Tourneys

3 Independents, Including DePaul, Assured of Bids

BY BOB GREEN

A number of college basketball coaches and athletic directors are sitting nervously beside telephones today. For some of them, it will ring once. For some twice. For some not at all.

They're waiting for the word from the National Invitation Tournament and the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which start picking the fields for their tournaments, the two major post-season attractions.

Fifteen of the 25 berths in the NCAA tournament are reserved for conference champions, but the other 10 go to at-large teams. The NCAA started bidding for those 10 teams today, one hour before the NIT can put in its bids for the 12 teams that make up the field for the Madison Square Garden attraction.

Assured of Bids

Three highly successful independents, Villanova, DePaul, and Oregon State, are virtually assured of bids to each. In some cases, the school can make its own choice.

Villanova, with victories over Duquesne, 73-63, and Canisius, 73-58, last week, is ranked eighth in the nation on a 19-2 record. There are indications it would prefer the NCAA spot if offered, but would be one of the big attractions for the NIT.

Oregon State, No. 9 in the nation, pushed its record to 21-3 with a 76-72 decision over Seattle last week and DePaul, No. 10, is 16-2 after victories over Marquette, 72-69, and Western Ontario, 96-58.

Temple is the first team to be assured of a tourney berth, having wrapped up the Middle Atlantic championship and a spot as a conference boss in the NCAA.

UCLA, the No. 1 team in the nation and the only major unbeaten, is within one game of securing at least a tie for the Big Six championship, and another spot and seems assured of doing so. The Bruins rolled over Washington twice last week, 73-58 and 83-60, pushing their record to 21-0.

Leads Big 10

Michigan, No. 2 in the nation, leads the Big Ten at 8-1 and 17-2 over-all.

Kentucky is ranked third at 18-2, but shares the Southeastern Conference lead with Georgia Tech, each 8-2 in the league. No. 4 Davidson tops the Southern at 19-3 and 8-2; No. 5 Duke leads the Atlantic Coast at 17-3 and 10-0.

Vanderbilt lost twice over the week, 71-75 in overtime to Georgia Tech and 64-62 to Tennessee and dropped to a share of fourth in the SEC and appears in danger of losing its No. 7 national ranking.

Damaged Fender

The left front tire of their red Ferrari blew early in the race, and resulted in a damaged front fender. Mechanics later hammered the fender away from the wheel.

But the headlights from that side of the car was gone, and Rodriguez said he wasn't sure how it would react once the drivers were forced to find their way around the track in the darkness. Race rules state that each car must have at least two forward lights working.

Hill, a 35-year-old veteran, said he experienced no trouble with the lights the way they were two driving lights and one headlight—and Rodriguez easy.

Hill and Rodriguez averaged about 98 miles per hour and took top prize of $12,300.

President Asked to Intervene in Fight Over Loading Ships

Maritime Union Officials Fear International Crisis

BY NEIL GILBRIDE
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Maritime union officials asked President Johnson today to intervene personally in a labor dispute over the loading of wheat for Russia to avert "an international crisis."

The Maritime trades department of the AFL-CIO also took a sharp verbal slap at Luther Hodges to recussing the unions of trying to make U.S. for-seign policy by threatening to boycott the wheat shipments. Earlier, top maritime union officials rejected the personal plea of Asst. Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds, sent here by the President because of the threatened boycott.

Dispute Over Ships

The unanimously adopted resolution by the maritime trades department accused Hodges and the Department of Commerce of becoming "an agent for profit-hungry operators."

The crux of the dispute is the insistence of union officials that at least half the wheat shipped to Russia go in U.S. flag vessels. They said the late President Kennedy had pledged this but that now federal officials were claiming not enough American vessels are available.

Shipping in foreign flag vessels is generally cheaper. The unions' action threatens to bog down on American docks some $75 million worth of grain to be shipped by the Continental Grain Co.

Reynolds is expected to try to soften the attitude of the AFL-CIO's maritime trades department on its threat to boycott loading of wheat for Russia, unless at least 50 per cent of it goes aboard U.S. ships.

He arrived late Sunday night took the life of and spent until 3 a.m. with James E. Van-maritime union officials. VandeHey's body was found by county police crushed between the car and a farm fence on County Trunk JJ, one-half mile east of the French Road. VandeHey had been alone in the car. The death was the second in Outagamie County in 1964 and the second involving only a single car. A Milwaukee man died Feb. 3 when his car went out of control in New London.

Conferees Try To Speed Action On Tax Cut Bill

Compromise May Be Sent to President During Coming Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate - House conferees resume work today on the tax bill with the possibility that a compromise measure may be worked out by Wednesday.

This could mean the measure would be ready for President Johnson's signature by next week, opening the way for higher paychecks for the average taxpayer by mid-March.

The conferees are trying to iron out differences between the $11.2 billion tax cut passed by the House and the $11.9 billion reduction approved in the Senate.

Although the pace in committees is expected to pick up, Congress generally planned another light week.

Housing Bill Hearings

The controversial civil rights bill—cornerstone with the tax cut of the Johnson administration's legislative program—was expected to arrive at the Senate's door today. The 11-part omnibus measure received 290-130 approval from the House last week.

A House banking subcommittee starts hearings today on President Johnson's housing bill. Robert C. Weaver, head of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, was called as the first witness. A Senate subcommittee begins work on it Wednesday.

A House Labor subcommittee scheduled the start of hearings on another Johnson program—a plan to institute double time-for-overtime in certain industries, a penalty designed to encourage employment of more workers rather than the use of overtime labor.

Wirtz First Witness

Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz was the leadoff witness for this measure.

Baseball and football magnates will be on hand today and Tuesday before a Senate Antitrust subcommittee which is considering a professional sports antitrust bill.

The Senate Rules Committee continues behind closed doors its probe into the doings of Bobby Baker, former secretary of the Senate majority.

On the House floor, the most important bill this week will be the $16.9 billion military procurement authorization bill coming up Thursday.

The Senate has nothing important scheduled for the floor and may be in recess several days this week.

3 Americans Killed, 51 Injured in Saigon Blast

U. S. Army Medics carry critically wounded American victim into Army dispensary in Saigon Sunday, administering blood plasma in process, after terrorists planted bomb in a Saigon service theater. A Viet Cong terrorist, using a homemade pistol, killed the U. S. military policeman on guard outside the lobby while at least another one planted a powerful bomb just inside. A Marine captain, seeing the bomb, rushed in to warn the 500 persons inside the Capital Kindo Theater and was killed by falling debris. At least one other American was killed and there were 49 injured. (AP Wirephoto)

Ricksha Boy Suspect in Terrorism

BY MALCOLM W. BROWNE
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—South Vietnamese police held a wounded ricksha driver today as a prime suspect in the bombing of a U.S. movie theater.

Three Americans were killed and 51 Americans—including women and children—were wounded Sunday in the latest anti-American violence in Saigon. Nine Vietnamese also were injured.

One of the dead was a military policeman who was shot while standing guard outside the theater. Another was a Marine Corps captain who was crushed under falling debris as he ran inside to warn the theater's 300 patrons.

Lighten Security

The body of the third American was so badly mangled identification was delayed.

The U.S. command in South Viet Nam ordered security measures tightened to protect American personnel in the capital from terrorism by the Communist Viet Cong. On Feb. 9, two bombs exploded under the bleachers of a softball field near Saigon Airport, killing two U.S. enlisted men and injuring 23 other Americans.

Although police declined to discuss the ricksha boy's suspected role in the bombing, the shooting and blast apparently were the work of a highly skilled terrorist team.

2 Terrorists Seen

Witnesses saw at least two terrorists. They said one shot the military policeman at close range. Another hurried into the theater with a canvas satchel. A third man—or woman—may have been involved.

A U.S. military spokesman said the lone Vietnamese civil policeman on duty outside the theater was seen pedaling away on a bicycle shortly before the attack.

The MP was killed by a single bullet.

3 Die in Copter Crash in Georgia

HINESVILLE, Ga. (AP)—An Army helicopter crashed and burned at nearby Ft. Stewart Sunday, killing three occupants and injuring another.

An Army spokesman said the helicopter was firing machine guns on the base's Metz range when it crashed. The aircraft, which operated out of Ft. Benning, Ga., was attached to the 11th Air Assault Division.

Names of the victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Court Cites Need for Fair Districting

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court ruled today the Constitution requires "equal representation for equal numbers of people" as a fundamental goal for the U.S. House of Representatives.

The decision was handed down in a Georgia congressional case.

Justice Black, delivering the majority opinion, said federal courts have authority to look into congressional districting.

"While it may not be possible to draw congressional districts with mathematical precision," Justice Black said, "that is no excuse for ignoring our Constitution's plain objective of making equal representation for equal numbers of people the fundamental goal for the House of Representatives."

Justice Harlan, in a dissenting opinion, wrote: "I had not expected to witness the day when the Supreme Court of the United States would render a decision which casts grave doubt on the constitutionality of the composition of the House of Representatives."

"It is not an exaggeration to say that such is the effect of today's decision. The court's holding that the Constitution requires states to select representatives either by elections at large or by elections in districts composed 'as nearly as is practicable' of equal population places in jeopardy the seats of almost all the members of the present House of Representatives."

Jurors in Ruby's Murder Trial To be Picked From Panel of 900

BY RELMAN MORIN
DALLAS (AP)—Jack Ruby murder, as an integral part of hinged with grief by the death of the President.

His chief defense counsel, Melvin Mounon Belli, of San Francisco in an informal talk with reporters Sunday night spoke of psychomotor epilepsies, "psychic shock" and "trauma."

The key phrase in the indictment of Ruby charges he "killed Lee Harvey Oswald by shooting him with a gun."

An unprecedented panel of 900 jury candidates—nearly double the normal number—will be called in order to select 12 as unprejudiced.

Near Assassination Scene

Ruby, 32, a pale, pudgy night club operator, shot down Lee Harvey Oswald, a self-styled mummified mummy, two days after the President was killed in Dallas.

The trial is starting in a courtroom directly across the street from the building where the assassin lurked and then fired at Kennedy.

Defense lawyers indicate that they will try to go into the circumstances of the President's assertion that he became un-

Wade says he will demand the death penalty for Ruby. Out of 25 murder trials, Wade has obtained 24 convictions.

Ruby's trial, it appears now, will develop into a battle of psychiatrists.

His defense will pivot on a claim of temporary insanity.

Reynolds Wins in Delegation Fight

Supporters Edge Nelson Democrats in Milwaukee Congressional Districts

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — Democrats siding with Gov. Reynolds in the dispute. John W. Reynolds in a dispute. Among the surprises was the defeat of Milwaukee County Democratic Chairman William J. Higgins as he bid for a delegate assignment in the 4th district. He is a leader of the Reynolds-Lucey forces in the county. Each of the state 10 congressional districts will nominate candidates for delegate posts that will have a full vote each and two for posts with a half vote each. The delegates will be elected in the primary.

New Contract At J. I. Case Racine Plant

Features Are All Union Shop and Wage Increases

Nelson backers won four nominations in the 2nd District caucus at Madison Saturday. The differences between Reynolds and Nelson became an issue again last month in a dispute over the filling of several important party posts.

There are reports that both the governor and the senator are considering heading favorite son delegate slates to the Democratic national convention in the event President Lyndon B. Johnson does not enter Wisconsin's April 7 primary.

In the combined caucus for the 4th, 5th and 9th districts in Milwaukee Sunday, observers said the unofficial results would seem to give Reynolds 4½ delegate votes to 3½ for the Nelson forces. One vote was regarded as neutral.

Reynolds, Nelson and former state Democratic chairman Patrick Lucey of Madison, who is now the state's national committeeman, all addressed the Union and management officials—at odds for more than 25 years—praised the "model" contract as a foundation for future cooperation and progress. The union has struck the company five times since 1934.

Robert Dugger, the firm's vice president of corporate relations, said the contract would serve as a model in several ways for agreements soon to be negotiated by the company and UAW locals in Iowa, Illinois and California.

The company has about 5,000 employees in six plants, with about half at the Racine works. The union has 2,540 members and 1,100 of them were present at the two-and-a-half hour meeting Sunday.

After the union's bargaining committee recommended that the membership voted to accept the proposed contract, the water back on at the U.S. only 12 dissenting votes were recorded during a standing vote procedure.

Highlights of the contract include an all-union shop and wage increases of five cents an hour for piece workers and seven cents an hour for day workers for the first year of the contract, which is retroactive to Jan. 1.

A similar wage increase is included for the second year of the contract, beginning Jan. 1, 1965, and for the third year, when the wage rate of hourly union members will increase to eight cents an hour. An additional five cents an hour in the first and third years will go into effect for employees of the skilled trades.

A much improved hospital plan also was approved, with hospital room and board and other provisions extending coverage for a full year. The contract also provides four weeks vacation after 20 years, over the former maximum of three weeks after 15 years.

The director of region 10 for the UAW, Harvey Kitzman, said the contract was the best ever negotiated at Case Local 180 president Tony Valco termed it "good for Case, good for Racine and good for local 180."

Byrnes to Top State GOP Slate

Rep John W. Byrnes of Green Bay will be Wisconsin's favorite son candidate and lead an uncommitted delegate slate to the GOP national convention.

The names of the 10 delegates at large, including two from the Fox Cities region, were announced by Talbot Peterson of Appleton, state Republican Party chairman.

With the country's top prospective candidates for the Republican presidential nomination having assured him they do not intend to enter the Wisconsin primary, Byrnes announced today he will proceed as a favorite son candidate.

GOP United Wisconsin Republicans now will have a unified situation come primary time, capping several strategic moves in recent weeks.

Harold Stassen, former Minnesota governor, was the last of the potential presidential aspirants to give assurance Saturday that he would support the favorite son candidacy of Rep. Byrnes in the April 7 preferential primary.

"I am proceeding with the unified support of party leaders in Wisconsin," Byrnes acknowledged today.

"Needless to say, I am pleased that these outstanding Republicans (delegates-at-large) have consented to serve their party and their country by participating in the process of choosing the strongest and best qualified presidential candidate at San Francisco," Byrnes added.

Delegates Experienced "Their acceptance means that Wisconsin will be represented at the Republican national convention by people of broad experience and mature judgment who are close to Republican sentiment and represent a cross-section of party viewpoints."

Byrnes said the remaining 20 delegates—two from each of the congressional districts, will be selected within a few weeks. "Our endeavor will be to obtain uncommitted district delegates with the same party stature and qualifications as the at large delegates," Byrnes said.

The at-large candidates announced by Peterson include Miss Catherine B. Cleary of Shorewood, vice president of the state GOP finance committee and former assistant United States treasurer; Knott, the party's governor candidate; Rep. Melvin Laird of Marshfield, chairman of the platform committee for the 1964 Republican national convention; Lt. Gov. Jack Olson; Wilbur Renk, candidate for the United States senator nomination.

Administration Accused of Making Deal on Tax Cut and Civil Rights

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the Selective Service System starts today its program to assist potential draftees who are turned down for military service because of educational deficiencies.

CIVIL RIGHTS: Two Republican senators say they suspect the Johnson administration has made a deal with Southern senators which involves the tax cut and civil rights bills.

"We don't know what the offices of the Labor Department is but we are very suspicious that it's something special counseling and testing to weaken the civil rights bill," Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said on a taped television program Sunday with initially to 23-year-olds called for induction. After July 1, all 18-year-olds will be tested at the time they register for the draft.

Meanwhile, one of the nation's civil rights leaders, James Farmer, said on the CBS radio and television program "Face the Nation" that "extensive economic aid this year as it did demonstrations" were planned last year, but other parts of the in Illinois to influence Senate world are scheduled for a Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen to change his stand against the public accommodations section of the bill.

Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, said racial demonstrations would continue even if the civil rights bill is passed. "To enforce a public accommodations provision I anticipate we would have to go from restaurant to restaurant in many parts of Mississippi and Alabama," he said.

Contrary Testimony on Missile Reliability Is Given to Congress

Secret Appearances Are by McNamara and Gen. LeMay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress reportedly has received contradictory testimony on the reliability of missiles from Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Curtis LeMay.

Informed sources on Capitol Hill report that the two, in secret testimony before the House Armed Services Committee, differed not only in their general estimates of reliability but in the specific figures they cited as evidence.

Differences between McNamara and LeMay could have potential political repercussions. Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona has raised the question of missile reliability during his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

Reliability Challenged Goldwater, a major general in the Air Force Reserve, has challenged the reliability of missiles and called for more funds for manned bombers. This evidently was the position taken by LeMay and rejected by McNamara before the House committee.

More light on the controversy may be shed Tuesday when the committee releases a transcript of the hearings that were held for two weeks beginning Jan. 27.

The transcript, however, will be censored by the Department of Defense. It is conceivable that figures on the reliability of missiles—if deemed classified—would be deleted.

LeMay Impressive Most members of the committee evidently were more impressed by LeMay's figures than by those of McNamara, for they added $92 million to the defense authorization bill for development of a new manned interceptor plane.

McNamara did not ask for this. But, according to the official report of the committee, LeMay did.

A minority of the committee, however, did agree with McNamara. One of them, Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., has received permission to file a minority report with the House by midnight tonight.

This indicates that there will be a fight when the bill reaches the floor of the House. The bill, which would authorize $16.9 billion for military procurement, research and development, is scheduled for House action Thursday.

Man, 72, Follows in Footsteps of Father

BY JAMES B. LAMB
JENKINTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Lessing J. Rosenwald's father often told him it was easier to make a million dollars than to give it away wisely.

Now 72 and a man who has given away that much and more, Rosenwald is in complete agreement with his late father. Newspaper stories of the past Julius, the Sears, Roebuck & Co. pioneer who also devoted much of his life to philanthropy.

Lessing Rosenwald spends most of his time now—he retired in 1939 as chairman of the Sears, Roebuck—planning gifts and ways to improve those already made.

He works nearly every day in an office at "Alverthorpe," his estate in this community of 5,000 just outside Philadelphia.

Rosenwald, like his father, regards himself as a trustee of the wealth and wants to see that money and other gifts go to those who will not abuse them.

It's virtually impossible to get an accurate accounting of his gifts and Rosenwald said he would never try to total them. Newspaper stories of the past record some: $70,000 in 1931 to the Philadelphia United Campaign; $31,000 to the University of Pennsylvania in 1938; $65,000 to the United Fund in 1946; 2,000 rare books to the Institute for Advance Study in 1951.

"It's really not such a noble thing as you think," he says. "My father, who was born in very modest circumstances and made a great fortune, always felt this was to a large extent accidental. He regarded himself more or less as a trustee for his wealth. He wanted to see that it was spent and utilized wisely. He more or less trained all the children to do the same."

Rosenwald and his tiny, dynamic wife, Edith, came to Jenkintown in 1920 when he became manager of the Sears, Roebuck store in Philadelphia. Eventually he succeeded his father as president and then as board chairman.

How does he view his philanthropy?

"It's like a friend told me: 'It must be an awful lot of fun to be your own executor.' And it is."

Your State Income Tax

Returns Must be Filed if $600 Is Earned by Individual in Year

BY NORMAN E. SCHLEY
For The Associated Press
Who must file a Wisconsin return?

Generally speaking, single and married persons residing in Wisconsin having a gross income of $600 or more must prepare and file an individual income tax return. If married, returns are required where the combined net income totals or exceeds $1,400. Non-residents with income property will file using a special form 1 N.

Q. As a student, I spent my summer vacation working in a paper mill, and after various deductions for insurance and both U.S. and Wisconsin income taxes, I was able to bank only $580. Must I file a return?

A. Yes. When your gross earnings exceed $600 (which they undoubtedly did in your case), a return must be filed. The amount you "took home" company retirement plan. The profit on a small insurance agency operated by my wife amounted to $325. Must we file a Wisconsin return?

A. Social security benefits are not taxable. If you contributed to your company's retirement plan, do not report this income until the amount you invested is returned via the periodic payments. If your wife uses a part of your home as an office she may deduct a portion of the expenses of maintaining the household plus the cost of office supplies. With this explanation, if your combined income exceeds $1,400 you should file.

Q. As a widow, I pay a neighbor to watch my children while I am at work. I couldn't continue at my job unless someone was paid. May I deduct these costs?

A. Yes, on the federal return. Up to $600 per year may be deducted if the child is under 12 or physically or mentally handicapped. No, on the Wisconsin return. Child care expenses are not deductible in the state.

New Worker

Q. I started working last fall but I have not received a Wisconsin income tax blank. What do I do?

A. Apply to your nearest Wisconsin Department of Taxation office located in Appleton, Eau Claire, Madison or Milwaukee, for the necessary forms. Most attorneys and all certified public accountants also have blanks available.

Q. This year we again received a set of Wisconsin income tax forms. We live with my son and our only income is from social security plus $40 interest on U.S. Savings bonds. Must we file?

A. No. Both social security payments and interest on federal securities is considered exempt income in Wisconsin. The mailing of forms to you was for your convenience and is not to be considered a request to file.

Mother Died

Q. My mother died early last year and left me her home in Sheboygan. I have collected the rent since the estate was closed. My wife and I have lived in Illinois for over ten years. Is a Wisconsin income tax return necessary?

A. In your case, yes, and you file on a special form 1 N. Depending on the amount of your tax liability (if it exceeds $20 not subject to withholding), a declaration of estimated tax on form 1 ES will also be required. Non-residents with income from personal services or from property located in Wisconsin are subjected to the Wisconsin income tax laws.

(Editors' Note: This is the first in a series of 12 articles written by a widely known tax authority concerning the problems of the Wisconsin income tax payer. The series, with questions and answers, is based on typical problems presented to the author from day to day in his practice as a certified public accountant.)

Proxmire Charges Faith Broken With Shipping Firms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., charged today that the Commerce Department has broken faith with U.S. shipping firms by failing to send at least half of the wheat sold to Russia in American vessels.

"This pledge has been breached and no evidence exists that it will be honored in the future," Proxmire said. "This break of faith casts increasing doubt on the validity of these wheat deals."

He said slightly more than 59,000 tons of wheat have been shipped thus far to Russia in American vessels compared with more than 160,000 tons shipped in foreign vessels.

This represents, he said, only 27 per cent. not the 50 per cent. pledged to U.S. firms by the Commerce Department.

Senate Will Pass Meaningful Rights Bill, Senator Says

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Senate will pass a "meaningful" civil rights bill, but not before extended debate, Sen. Thurston B. Morton, R-Ky., predicted Sunday.

Morton, appearing on a television program (Milwaukee Reports, WISN-TV), said debate probably would last 10 weeks. He said he didn't know how much the Senate would change the bill.

"The House leaders have said that if the Senate waters down the bill, they won't agree," said Morton. "It won't be anything easy... but I am sure a meaningful bill will be passed."

This Is Brotherhood Week

Brotherhood Week this year takes on added significance with the omnibus civil rights bill having passed the House and proceeding into the Senate where it faces the powerful opposition of southern senators. Brotherhood in its legal context is a subject which is before us every day in the headlines of the newspaper.

This points up specifically why the celebration of a week each year in behalf of brotherhood is important. For the civil rights legislation which Congress eventually will enact will be only as effective as is the acceptance of the principles of brotherhood by the people of the United States. We must learn to live in brotherhood because it is our national philosophy rather than because Congress has passed a law on the subject.

And that essentially is the objective of Brotherhood Week. It has been observed every year since 1934. It is a time of renewal and resolution to sustain brotherhood.

The observance is sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, an organization founded in 1928 by a number of distinguished Americans. It is a civic organization of religiously motivated people, seeking through education and discussion to promote civic cooperation and mutual understanding among men of good will of all religious and ethnic groups. Its purpose is positive: to approach more closely the national ideal of building "one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Women Favored Citizens in 1858

The discovery by an Appleton attorney of an 1858 statute forbidding the arrest of women "in an action to recover a fine or penalty" is not likely to greatly change court actions toward women accused of an infraction of law. If later statutes do not actually supercede the 1858 one, one will be enacted. But it is an interesting commentary on the differences between today and 100 years ago.

Women are pretty generally accepted in many fields of employment although they still charge there is discrimination in higher education, medicine and executive positions particularly in the Midwest and the South. There are some men who grumble about career women because of the alleged effect on the home, unemployment and morals. But Wisconsin now has a law barring discrimination in pay. And there is no sign that the career woman or the housewife with a part time job is going to go back to being a homemaker again.

However, there is a somewhat healthy reaction among women. Some have discovered that just a job is not the answer to all their problems. They have found that meaningful work outside the home usually involves more preparation and self-discipline than many are willing to face. Perhaps along the way they have discovered that the same is true of men and there can be a better understanding of their roles in life.

The old law is rather a shocker. Most women would not go back to it since it implies that, while they might be immune from the law, there was a man at home who would hold them responsible for their actions—and who had the right.

Milwaukee Teachers Set Precedent

The decision by Milwaukee teachers that the Milwaukee Teachers Education Association should be their bargaining agent in dealing with the Board of Education indicates that Milwaukee teachers consider the professional aspects of their work of more importance than hard-nosed bargaining for salary or fringe benefits. The vote was almost 2 to 1 for the MTEA over the Milwaukee Teachers Union, an affiliation of the AFL-CIO American Federation of Teachers. Only 33 of the more than 4,000 teachers who voted were in favor of no representation.

The vote is in contrast to one in New York in which the affiliate of the AFT won either because the majority of teachers were in favor of it or because a great many did not vote. In Milwaukee, a total of 4,012 teachers voted out of a possible 4,318.

It was a healthy and a heartening decision for the future of education in Wisconsin, and to some extent in the nation, since the vote was watched all over the country particularly in other large cities where other votes on the matter are expected. But this is no time for those concerned with education, taxpayers in general, to sit back smugly and forget about the problems of teaching.

In the first place, teaching conditions in New York are vastly different than in Wisconsin. There has been widespread criticism of the lack of liaison between junior and senior high schools in the instruction in foreign languages, the social sciences and English in New York. In some schools, conditions are not far removed from those of the "Blackboard Jungle." While salaries are somewhat higher, so is the cost of living. And over all there has been confusion over the roles of teachers, administrators and board members heightened by the increasing racial dispute.

It was the failure of other means to improve conditions that probably led to the victory for the federation in New York. Wisconsin schools are not at all immune to the same sort of conditions. And we should begin to accept some of the requirements for quality education and standards.

If we are to have the sort of outstanding educational instruction most of us want for our children we are going to have to pay the price in higher salaries to the qualified teachers. Although in most school systems in this area the salary for beginning teachers with bachelor degrees compares favorably with that offered in other professions with similar educational preparation, this is not true for the career teacher with more advanced degrees and years of experience. While merit pay plans are almost impossible to work out with much assurance of success in rewarding the best teachers, other means need more experimentation. Team teaching, core instruction, ungraded sections, curriculum planning, all should be tried in more schools. And in some schools we need less paternalism in the administration and more active cooperation for the excellence of instructions and programs by board members.

Teaching is a difficult and rewarding profession. Perhaps the one is necessary for the other. But the individual teacher who intends to make the field his life's profession needs and deserves both the opportunities of financial advancement and respect for what is one of the most important areas of employment today. The public's awareness of such recognition has grown in the last 20 years. It must continue to expand.

Looking Backward

Boat Operations Investigated

100 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for Feb. 13, 1864.

The Military Commission now in session in Norfolk, of which Brig. Gen. I. Wistar is President, has investigated another novel steamboat operation.

The steamer Nelly Baker was chartered in February, 1862, at $350 per day. Capt. A. W. Leader, Capt. Charles Spear, and J. H. B. Long, all of Boston, were the owners.

The Nelly Baker cost $19,800. She was in the employ of the government for 10 months, receiving $196,200 charter money. She was then sold to the United States for $12,000, the owners realizing the sum of $148,000.

In addition to this, the profits derived from the sale of refreshments were about $25 per day during the time she was running from Old Point to Gen. McClellan's army, and she got all her coal gratis from the government.

Another neat case is that of a canal barge, called the Miss Mary, which was worth $800 to $900. She was chartered in November of 1862 at the exorbitant rate of $25 a day, remained in charter until she earned for her patriotic owners $4,000. She was nominally a prison hulk, but the evidence goes to show that she was used a very small part of the time.

Her owners were the noted John Coblenze and John L. Pickrell, of Baltimore, who figured in the Grimes committee investigation.

The testimony so far goes to show that a most culpable lack of system prevailed in the Quartermaster's Department during the year 1862.

25 YEARS AGO

Monday, Feb. 13, 1939.

A new basketball team was organized by the girls of St. Mary Catholic Youth Organization in Kaukauna. Members of the squad included Grace Nagan, Lillian Smith, Lillian Vils, Georgiana Schmidtkofer, Marjorie Pein, Gladys Gilkey, Gina Van Dyke, Anna Mae Nytes, Lucille Giordana, Ivy I. Wagnitz and Alice Thompson.

Fred Dingeldein was elected the first mayor of McKinley Junior High School, Appleton, in an election that included political campaigning and official voting. The system was innovated by Principal Walter T. Fox. "Mayor" Dingeldein's two defeated opponents were Marian Hamilton and Betty Starks.

Mrs. William Kolb was chairman of the committee planning the Valentine dance of the Century Club of Appleton. Assisting her on the committee were Mrs. V. James Whelan, Mrs. Carl Schaefer, Mrs. George Hinton, and Mrs. Byron Yule.

10 YEARS AGO

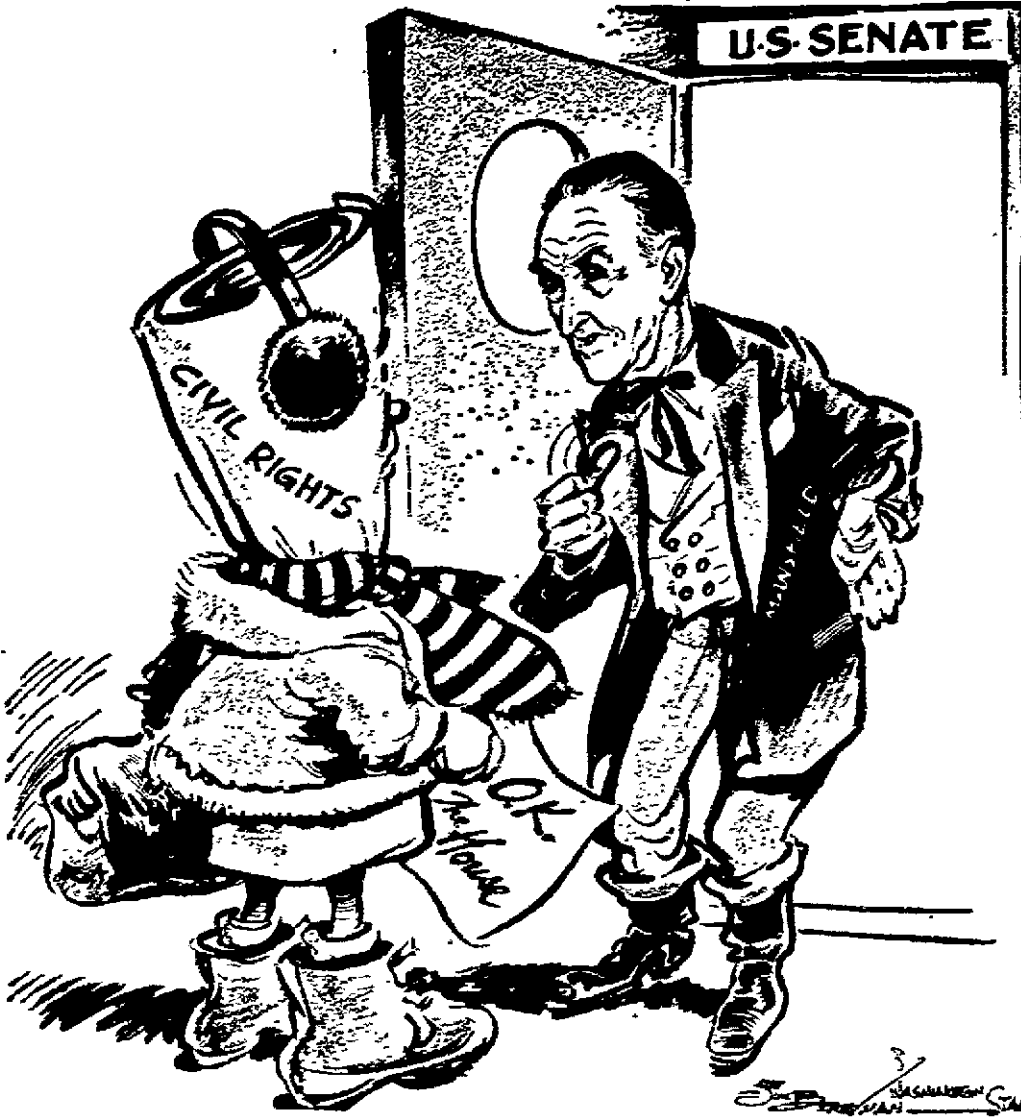

Monday, Feb. 15, 1954.

Sid Faulks, president of the Y-O-Wega Bowhunters, had constructed a moving shooting gallery 16 feet long and weighing 170 pounds. The moving target was to be a feature of the bowhunters outdoor shoot the next summer.

Members of the McKinley High School basketball team were Bob Reffke, Dick Brueggemann, Tony Bessette, Bob Boettcher, Dennis Verbrick, Jim Schroeder, Erv Strader, Jerry Kain, Wayne Robinson, Bob Hietpas, Gene Krueger, manager Bob Rosenberg and coach Sherwood Russell.

Diane De Shaney and Dave Buksyk, both of Appleton, presented a special performance called "Wings on Silver Blades" at the ice skating show sponsored by the Kimberly Recreation Association. William Van Hout, chairman, was assisted by John Busch and Frank Van Boekel.

Taking part in a Lincoln Day program at Woodlawn School were Mary Hatch, Dawn Elsner, Nancy Mossholder, Bernard Gauthier, DuWayne Reim, LaRue Frytogle and Sandra Reim. Teachers in charge were Mrs. Emily Bergen and Miss Buelah Rock.

Freedman Writes

Ted Sorenson Can Write Really Great Book on Late President

BY MAX FREEDMAN

On Wednesday, a few days before his departure from Washington, Theodore C. Sorenson, the special counsel for President Kennedy, will be honored at a public ceremony sponsored by the present and former members of the Cabinet and by his closest associates in the government. It is difficult to recall any other public servant who has received such a tribute, and impossible to think of anyone with an equal claim to public recognition.

It is a strange misconception of Mr. Sorenson's role to think of him primarily or essentially as Mr. Kennedy's most trusted speech-writer. He is the last man to minimize the power of eloquence as the champion of great causes. But he knows that the art of politics consists in turning ideas into achievements; and he towered into greatness as an architect of policy and a master of strategy. He was so valuable to Mr. Kennedy in the drafting of state papers precisely because he was so familiar with the ideals and hopes of the leader whom he delighted to serve.

This surely is the central point, the one which means the most to Mr. Sorenson. He saw in Mr. Kennedy the leader who embodied and fulfilled his own highest principles of government. It was never necessary for Mr. Sorenson to attribute to Mr. Kennedy any spurious "deals of his own. His task was rather to draw out and express the ideals which glowed with quiet passion in Mr. Kennedy's mind and heart.

One tiny story will illustrate the almost unique gift which Mr. Sorenson and Mr. Kennedy both had in being able to laugh at themselves without ever laughing at their principles. Within a few days of its delivery, President Kennedy's inaugural address, with its soaring eloquence and majestic idealism, was universally recognized as a noble affirmation of the faith which has often glorified America in times of challenge. The overflowing praise rather embarrassed the President, and one day Mr. Sorenson drew gusts of laughter from Mr. Kennedy by bringing him a hilarious parody — never published to this day — of the inaugural address.

Now Mr. Sorenson would have put his hand in the fire to protect the principles of that speech, and Mr. Kennedy served those ideals with gay courage to the moment of his death. For both of them what mattered above everything else was the victory of principles, not the glory of words; and they shrank with wise reserve from turning the tributes to the speech into the exaltation of the speaker. They were not artificers of words but leaders of men and nations, and that is how they wished to be judged. To have shown this poised and modest judgment in the days of unparalleled triumph is in itself a mark of greatness.

We are fortunate beyond the usual measure of men in knowing that before many months have passed we will be able to look at President

Kennedy and the record of his administration through the eyes of Mr. Sorenson and Mr. Arthur Schlesinger Jr. Their two books will not be competitive, for they will approach their subject from different points of view, and will throw accumulated light on a gallant and unforgettable figure.

Mr. Schlesinger came to the White House with an established reputation as an historian, a biographer, and an interpreter and defender of Democratic values. His years in the White House add another notable chapter to his record of public service. But with Mr. Sorenson it is rather different. He will not only be rearing a monument to Mr. Kennedy; he will also be going on a pilgrimage into his own past. He has it within his power to write a book about President Kennedy that will be at once unique, invulnerable and immortal, if it is no exaggeration to use Augustine Birrell's words in tribute to Gibbon.

This, his task completed, Mr. Sorenson will be on his own. That may well be the beginning of a new career of great significance for the American people. Mr. Sorenson will not seek elected office for himself; but in the world of ideas and in the clash of debate his influence will often count decisively, and it will be an influence with which scrambling politicians will have to reckon. Countless people, especially young people with an adventurous faith in the destiny of America, look to Mr. Sorenson as a spokesman for their hopes. Not even the cruel changes of a Democracy can dim our memory of his valiant services, nor extinguish our conviction that in service to President Johnson and other presidents he will many times place the whole country again under grateful obligation to him.

All Politicians Won't Turn Out as Statesmen

Editor, Post-Crescent:

Your editorial in Monday, Feb. 10th's paper on choosing a vice president apparently takes strong issue with a system which must remain as it is.

The editorial states that we should pay less attention to how a candidate will affect the party's ticket, and more to how good that man would be in office, should he be elected.

This is all nice and dandy, but what good is a man, excellently qualified though he may be, if he cannot get elected? If our only effort in choosing a vice-presidential candidate is to have a man who could fill the office of the presidency, if necessary, we may as well have our nominating done by machines, for only then would Americans be sure a properly-qualified candidate was running, and not a mere product of some smoke-filled room at a convention.

Under our present system of government, we all are governed by politicians. There is no way for us to avoid this: only men who inform us of their capabilities (real or supposed) are liable to stand any sort of chance on a ballot. It would be wonderful if we had more statesmen, but politicians seem to be our closest answer to them. We need the smoke-filled rooms to get a winning combination. We'll have to take our chances with the results.

Knowles to Campaign On Fiscal Issues but How About Sales Tax?

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — The Republican candidate for the governorship has declared that public spending and taxation will be the key issue in the new state election campaign.

Warren P. Knowles is proba b l y right, aside from the fact that this is a campaign posture that is difficult for any Republican candidate to avoid. Perhaps because the crisis atmosphere and the protected Republican-Democratic struggles at the capitol on expenditure and taxing policy have become so wearisome there has been a tendency to ignore the fact that the finance issue remains the dominant one in state affairs.

It is undoubtedly useful, therefore, for one of the major candidates to declare early his acceptance of the realities. Chief among them is the fact that the next governor and the next legislature, whatever the outcome of the elections in the fall, will again wrestle with the eternal challenge of balancing the capacity and the patience of the taxpayer with the militant hunger of the expanding public services.

DOLEFUL STORY

The Wisconsin situation is not unique. The state government financing dilemma is common in the country. It is the major reason why the governorship is the most risky of office to which a politician can aspire today — and one of the reasons why Knowles may have appeared reluctant to run.

Yet it is probably good to provide reminders of the melancholy local prospects, if only to reduce the shock when the perennial headlines about deficit and crisis recur next winter.

State government spending — which of course embraces to a considerable extent local government disbursement also — has been expanding at a rate of about 20 per cent biennially for more than a decade. There has also been a steady expansion of the tax budget and there is some growth in the tax base. If the proposed federal tax reduction bill becomes law there will be a further enlargement of the yield of state taxation resulting. But the growth of existing state services and the enlargement of the range of accepted state government service obligations have been considerably beyond the rate of increase in tax productivity, so that another substantial deficit confronting the next state administration and the next Legislature can be predicted.

So the question arises: What will be the politicians chosen in the fall do about raising the revenues to bridge the gap?

The likely answer is a further extension of the sales tax, which has some stretch remaining although not nearly as much as most persons tend to believe. In approximate terms, the state is now yielding from the sales tax base about two-thirds of the revenue potential of a general sales tax which would exempt food and clothing and medicines. Probably no politician, whatever his beliefs, is yet ready to tax all commodities at retail, without exception.

That is not to say that the chief candidates of the parties will willingly discuss the sales tax extension which appears inevitable to the rest of the community that is not wearing blinders.

Gov. Reynolds cannot prudently campaign again on this question, without reminding those of his ideological persuasion that he made absolute commitments during his last drive for votes that he could not honor when the showdown came in negotiating his first term budget with the legislature. Reynolds will prefer campaigning on pledges of a high level of governmental service, especially in the popular fields of education and welfare.

Knowles and the Republicans, meanwhile, will remember that the Republican nominee in 1962 over-estimated the understanding of the electorate on the inevitability of sales taxation. He prefers the stance of fiscal moderation, with the promise implicit that a Republican regime, spending less, will also tax less.

Harris Completes 20 Years Writing Column

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

This week marks the completion of 20 years of writing this column. In that time, I have written more than 5,000 columns, totaling more than 2,000,000 words, upon hundreds of different subjects.

The question I am asked more often than any other is: "How can you do it every day?" And the answer is so simple. I am often ashamed to give it: each column writes the next one.

Everything, in some way, is related to everything else. No subject exists in isolation. All life is a process, and all processes are somehow linked together, directly or indirectly.

I am currently looking through a new book called "The Road to It," a study in narcotics, delinquency and social policy, written by a team of psychologists, sociologists, and case-workers.

The book deals with dope addiction among young males in Manhattan, its relationship to gang activity, and the family and cultural backgrounds of these people. Yet the implications of even one book of this sort spread through the whole world and into every aspect of modern life.

It involves biology, geography, mental illness, family patterns, economic conditions, the threat of war, the influence of films, magazines, and movies, the structure of police and political systems.

It raises such questions as the failure of religious organizations, the lamentable lack of funds for child study, the changing roles of the schools in urban communities, the lack of addiction in such countries as England, the effect of opium traffic in China yesterday and today, the psychological versus the physiological need for narcotics, from the prevalence of cigaret addiction to the rarity of heroin attachment.

Also, it makes us think about the relationship between the moral and the mental, the whole matter of "will power," the effectiveness of punishment as against sympathy, the influence of the father on the sons, the increased burden of leisure facing us, the technological unemployment that hits hardest at youth, Negroes, Puerto Ricans and others most vulnerable to addiction and escape from a bleak future.

If a subject is considered in isolation, it cannot be understood or coped with. Political views solve no political problems: only when they transcend the political and are seen in a broader social, ethical and psychological perspective, can they lead us out of the tunnel. To look at one thing alone is not to see it at all.

What I am doing every day, and have been doing for 20 years, is to try to make connections. Joining rail to rail is the only way out of the tunnel, before the landslide buries us all.

Potomac Fever — by Fletcher Knebel

In cutting off Guantanamo's water, Castro misjudges the nature of American fighting men. Some of them haven't used the stuff for years.

Johnson proposes nine laws to protect the consumer. The best protection for the average consumer would be a good 9-day diet.

Republicans and Castro have finally found a common bond. Castro is trying to cut off our water — and a lot of Republicans are trying to cut off our Goldwater.

Reappraisal of Foreign Policy Is Long Overdue

Western Alliance And United Nations Fallen on Bad Days

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Isolationism rather than internationalism seems to have emerged as the basis for national policy in Great Britain and France, respectively, as well as in some of the smaller countries of Europe.

The United States, for many years the practitioner of isolationism, France do not stand together. now faces a crucial decision — whether to continue to pour out billions to other countries in the cy that the United States has world, or to copy both France experienced for a long time came on Wednesday after the president of the United States and the British prime minister had conferred for two days amid much social entertainment. They issued a carefully worded communique which implied that the two governments, while having differences of opinion, were nevertheless closely knit in friendship and partnership.

But the reporters had only had this communique in their hands a few minutes when they went to the British embassy for a news conference at which the prime minister, Sir Alec Douglas-Home, announced that Great Britain would not only continue its transactions with Castro in Cuba for trucks and other items of trade, but would also arrange government guarantees of long-term credits for private companies in their business dealings with the Soviet Union.

This action was a humiliating experience for the American government, because, when sharp differences in policy like this happen, there is usually at least a wait of a few days until the visiting dignitary gets home and announces his policies, presumably after consultation with his associates.

Ignored Protests
The impression here, however, is that the British government had made up its mind before hand to ignore American protests about trading with Cuba and had decided to go ahead with its policy of financing economic recovery in the Soviet Union. In fact, negotiations for a $266-million deal were going on in London between British firms and Soviet emissaries while President Johnson and Sir Alex Douglas-Home were meeting in Washington. The British are planning to build chemical plants in Russia which could indirectly be helpful to a war economy. Another $280-million deal to erect more factories in Russia now is under discussion in London.

The prime minister perceived that there was opposition in the United States to the British policy, and while in Washington explained that the British believe that "comfortable" Communists are less dangerous than hungry ones. After several days of polite and perfunctory statements,

Secretary of State Rusk finally said in a statement broadcast overseas by the "Voice of America."

Fat Soviets
"I think the principal problem we see in that (the prime minister's statement) is that we cannot guarantee that the Communists will use the resources that are available to them to make themselves comfortable and fat. They may keep themselves lean and use the resources available to them for armaments, and for the support of the subversive activities in other countries, and for pursuing the objectives of the world revolution."

Concurrently, the leaders of the Maritime unions of the AFL-CIO denounced the sale of American wheat to Russia and called on President Johnson to halt what they termed a "dangerous program." The AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department adopted a resolution urging the 29 unions to obey an order to refuse to load wheat on ships destined for the Soviet Union.

U. S. Wheat
The deal by which the United States sold wheat to the Soviets was unmoral on its face, but it was supposed to offer an economic benefit to our farm states. The British and French were quick to take advantage of the readiness of the United States to sell wheat to the Soviet Union. They, along with Spain, Italy, Belgium and Sweden, are shipping goods to Cuba.

It's everybody for himself. Certainly the time is at hand for an "agonizing reappraisal" of foreign policy as a whole by the American people.

Dilemma for Johnson

American-Backed War In Viet Nam Dragging

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American-backed war against Communists in South Viet Nam is not only dragging badly but Red assassins are trying to terrorize Americans, including women and children, far behind the lines.

This is building to an anguished dilemma for President Johnson in this election year when he wants to look good in foreign affairs, the field in which would-be Republican presidential candidates criticize him most.

has spent American lives and billions in dollars to save the area from communism.

The American part in this war is a kind of myth. The United States is not supposed to be directly involved, because that might mean a war with Red China, which this country, after Korea, doesn't want.

In the past three years about 185 Americans have been killed, fighting area but some in Saigon—and about 600 have been wounded or injured. In addition, this country has put over $5 billion in aid into South Viet Nam.

No wonder the Communists—generals who pulled off the Nov. 1 coup were bounced out in another coup by another bunch of generals, led by Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, 36.

A "dirty, untidy, disagreeable war," Secretary of State Dean Rusk has called it, although Johnson has said "we're not pulling out."

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all — this improvement was maintained in cases where a doctor's observations were continued over a period of many months! In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 26 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne® is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug counters.

Byrnes Thinks Election Issues International

World Alliance Key to 1964 Campaign Success

BY RICHARD P. POWERS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., said today the basic issues in the 1964 presidential campaign probably will revolve around the international rather than the domestic front.

Byrnes will run as Wisconsin's favorite son candidate for the GOP presidential nomination in that state's April 7 presidential primary. Present indications are that he will file his 30-delegate slate on March 6, the deadline.

"One of the key issues in the 1964 presidential campaign will be the disintegration of the free world alliance," Byrnes said.

Byrnes' View
It is Byrnes' view that much of the thrust of the Republicans in this year's campaign against President Johnson in the presidential race will be problems on the world scene.

The Wisconsin member said he wouldn't hazard a guess as to whom the Republicans will nominate to make the race against Johnson and the nominee probably won't be apparent until the Republican national convention gets under way.

"The present administration shows a lack of determination in dealing with many world matters," said Byrnes, who is chairman of the House Republican Policy Committee.

Many Flare-Ups
"There are flare-ups in many areas. These include South Vietnam, the American situation, Cuba, Panama and such. There is a disintegration of the free world determination to resist communism and its efforts to destroy the free world society."

In regard to the domestic front, Byrnes said it is likely the country's economy will be in fairly good shape next fall, although serious economic problems remain including the dollar drain abroad and the treasury deficit.

"Problems are still there," he said. "There is a possible time bomb of inflation being generated."

Stock Market Sensation

Broadway's Ex-Boy Wonder A Fast Man at Making Buck

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Rose always was a fast man. He likes girls. He likes making it, that is.

Now, at 64, star Broadway's ex-boy wonder, Rose is the one-time Broadway sensation who has been in the town house, plus luxurious estates on an island off Connecticut and at around last Montego Bay, Jamaica, British West Indies.

Rose's stock holdings had been increasing by nearly $9,000 an hour. That meant about $4 million.

It was no novelty to Rose. As the result of a stock split some years ago, he made a million dollars in 20 minutes.

Big Stockholder
Rose is the largest individual stockholder in American Telephone and Telegraph and the New York Central Railroad. His long-term profits in AT&T alone are more than $8 million.

During an interview in his palatial, five-story town house at 56 East 93rd St. Rose was in a reflective mood.

"None of it seems real to me," he said. "The only thing that seems real is the 50-cent piece I have in my pocket."

Is it better to be rich or not rich?
"I think rich is better. But I don't think it's all important."

One thing is, however, important to him at the moment. "I want to get married again," he said. "I have been married four times to three lovely girls. I like girls."

His wives were the late comedienne Fanny Brice, swimmer Eleanor Holm and showgirl Joyce Matthews.

His second marriage to Miss Matthews blew up about a year ago, and since then Rose has been batching in the town house, plus luxurious estates on an island off Connecticut and at around last Montego Bay, Jamaica, British West Indies.

II Careers
Rose takes pride in the fact that he has had 11 careers. He lists them in this order: Songwriter, shorthand expert, nightclub operator, Broadway producer, world's fair impresario (at New York's last one), art collector, theater owner (two in New York), newspaper columnist, real estate operator, philanthropist and stock speculator.

Rose has no idea how many millions he's worth, or how much he spends a year.

What he does know is that most satisfying of his careers was song writing. He wrote the words to some 300 tunes and 35 are still fairly popular. They include "It's Only a Paper Moon," "That Old Gang of Mine," "More Than You Know," and "Million Dollar Baby."

Commission Reports
State Land Purchases Of 116,342 Acres
MADISON (AP)—The Wisconsin Conservation Department reported today that state land purchases for public recreation since September, 1961, total 116,342 acres at cost of nearly $9 million. In addition, public easements have been taken on 7,500 acres at a cost of $187,000.

Financing came from the cent a pack tax on cigarettes, hunting and fishing license fees, park stickers, forestry funds and federal aid.

Acquisitions so far this year involved 2,825 acres at a price tag of $289,737, the department noted.

After July 1 the state will acquire 1,470 acres along the Popple River in Florence County for $75,000.

Denies Talking With Partin About Jurors

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)

A West Virginia businessman testified today he never discussed James R. Hoffa's 1962 trial jury with the government's chief witness in Hoffa's current jury-tampering trial.

Nicholas J. Tweel, 39, Huntington, W. Va., was the first defense witness as the current trial began its fifth week.

He is one of five men on trial with Hoffa on charges of trying to influence jurors in the Teamsters president's conspiracy trial in Nashville.

Tweel's version of his conversation with Edward G. Partin, a local Teamsters official from Baton Rouge, La., differed sharply from Partin's version, when Partin testified for the prosecution two weeks ago.

Tweel said he met Partin in the lobby of a Nashville hotel the day Hoffa's 1962 trial opened.

Asked for Attorney Partin said he was a Teamsters official, Tweel said, and he was having problems with the government. Partin is under federal indictment for embezzling $1,600 in union funds.

"He asked me if I knew a good attorney he could get in Louisiana," Tweel said. "I told him I had a friend who had a lawyer at New Orleans, but I couldn't remember his name."

That was the extent of my conversation with Mr. Partin. That was the last and only time I ever saw Mr. Partin until he took the stand here."

Partin had testified he met Tweel in the hotel coffee shop and was invited to Tweel's hotel room later that day. Partin said Tweel told him he had been invited to Nashville by Alvin Dorfman—a Chicago insurance man who also is on trial here—to help "set up a method to get to the jury."

Commander Seeks Talk With Nikita
ATLANTA (AP) — Daniel Neal Heller, national commander of the Jewish War Veterans, says he has asked for a meeting with Soviet Premier Khrushchev to discuss the status of the 3.5 million Jews in Russia.

Heller said in an interview that he asked for the meeting after reading reports of discrimination against Russian Jews, but added: "I have no accusations to make."

Panel of 900 Jury Prospects In Ruby's Trial completely same when he shot Oswald. Homicide Police Capt. Will Fritz and officer James R. Leavelle—who was handcuffed to Oswald when Ruby shot him—have testified that Ruby looked calm at that moment.

Ruby shot Oswald at close range with a snub-nosed, 38-caliber pistol Nov. 24.

Unanswered Questions
Two unusual elements hang darkly over this case.

One is the speculation that Kennedy's death was the result of a monstrous conspiracy, and that Ruby killed Oswald to "keep him from talking." No evidence has appeared to support this. On the contrary, in a series of ghost-written articles under Ruby's name, the accused man said:

"No one knew I was going to shoot Oswald—not even me. No one helped me or gave me access. I didn't do it intentionally. I didn't even know I had done it."

The other is Bell's contention that Dallas is so saturated with prejudice and feelings of guilt that Ruby cannot get a fair trial here. He says people in Dallas want a "sacrifice" to purge the name of the city.

Bell's Contention
Last week, Bell fought to have the trial moved to some other city. After presiding Judge Joe B. Brown ordered the lawyers to begin trying to select a jury today, Bell said:

"The people of Dallas, perhaps unconsciously, have to have a sacrifice in order to cleanse themselves, to prove Dallas is a law abiding community. They feel if Ruby is executed, it would re-establish some sense of law and order."

Last month, Judge Brown ordered a neurological examination of Ruby by three psychiatrists, one requested by the prosecution, one by the defense, the third appointed by the judge.

Brown said their report is now in custody of the court.

state central committee: Don Taylor of Waukesha, president of the Wisconsin Federation of Young Republicans; Mrs. Byron Ising of Oshkosh, Republican national committeewoman; Daniel Parker of Janesville, head of the state GOP finance committee, and Peterson.

As plans for the favorite son slate went ahead, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, one of the GOP presidential hopefuls who agreed to bypass the Wisconsin primary, restated his reasons for doing so.

At a Chicago press conference he said he skipped the Wisconsin test because "there is a very dangerous situation up there for a candidate. I respect also the Wisconsin desire for a favorite son."

In another weekend development, Warren Knowles, who is unchallenged for nomination as the Republican candidate for governor, took issue with revenue forecasting by Reynolds' administration.

Knowles, speaking at a Lincoln Day Dinner at Rhineland, said Saturday the question of whether the state is in a surplus or deficit condition "seems to fluctuate considerably, almost as if we are being asked to tune in tomorrow to hear what has happened."

He referred to a Tax Department report that tax collection in the first seven months of the fiscal year have dipped $5.8 million below estimates. "He said the department should 'stop forecast and confine itself to reports of what has happened.'"

Misleading Packaging Is Less Frequent Now

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Next time you're in the supermarket look at the instant coffee shelf. Until recently it was almost a research job to locate the fine print disclosing how much coffee each jar contained and thus how prices compared. Today, nearly all the jars carry big, bold print declarations on their front labels telling you "3 Ounces," "10 Ounces" or whatever the contents are.

Or turn to the dry cereal and cracker shelves, loaded with "skyscraper" boxes or "super duper" "giant economy" "family economy" sizes. You'll notice that on the front label of one of the fastest-selling cereals, the net weight is now stated in large, easy-to-read type (it formerly was tucked away on the top). You'll notice that another major cereal company has replaced a deceptively tall, thin box with a short, squat shape which gives you a much better idea of how big it really isn't. You'll see fewer misleading "economy" designations and more understandable "regular," "large" and "family" sizes.

While many boxes still aren't full to the brim — manufacturers maintain that contents shift in shipment and they can't do anything about the settling — at least increasing numbers of the companies are stating plainly on their packages why they aren't full.

Important Changes

Quietly but unmistakably, important changes are taking place in packaging practices to help us, as consumers, know more precisely what we are buying and whether or not we're getting bargains.

There is no question but that many of the changes are in direct response to the "Truth in Packaging" bill introduced early in the Kennedy administration by Michigan's Democratic Senator Philip A. Hart — the first major federal legislation ever proposed to control the packaging and labeling practices of American businessmen.

There is no question but that President Kennedy's and now President Johnson's sponsorship of legislation to protect the consumer against deceptive packaging and misleading labeling has spurred industry to act on its own to meet objections.

There is no question but that American businessmen have been impressed by the outpouring of consumer gripe letters to Mrs. Esther Peterson since she became the President's special assistant for consumer affairs last month.

Major Companies

"All major companies have put their people on notice to review packaging and labeling practices to make certain they are beyond reproach," says a highly-placed industry spokesman. One major food company is reported to have spent a hefty sum to make a film describing the packaging business for showing in women's service clubs later this year. A large supermarket chain is scheduling regular consumer seminars to hear gripes and ideas on packaging; the consumer views are quickly filtered back to manufacturers. Within the industry there's even talk about abandoning "cents off" deals on the basis that they are a nuisance and don't help a product's competitive position.

Today in Washington a new industry committee, representing all leading grocery producers and suppliers, is meeting with state weights and measures officials to draft a significant amendment to current state weights and measures laws. The amendment would require "prominent, definite and plain" statements of contents and define exactly how prominent, definite and plain those statements should be.

Consumer Protection

At the same time Mrs. Peterson is coordinating the operations of government employees in various agencies concerned with consumer protection, is considering permanent regional councils to deal with local consumer problems, is urging voluntary industry cooperation.

"We would much prefer that reforms come from industry. We do not want new laws just for the sake of laws," emphasizes Mrs. Peterson.

Because of Washington's drive for increased consumer protection, the states are tightening up their policing. Because of the warning of additional regulations by either or both authorities, industry is stepping up its activities to curb abuses — to an annual festival skidded and plunged into the River Jhelum, near Rawalpindi. The very threat of legislation is achieving much of the aims of the consumers. We, America's tween 8 and 16. The driver of the truck was the only survivor.

Women Participate in World Prayer Day

Monday, February 17, 1964 Appleton Post-Crescent A8

The Noon Ringing of Bells at Memorial Presbyterian Church Friday announced the 78th World Day of Prayer. During that time Mrs. Carl Bertram provided meditation music in the church. The Rev. Edward C. Dahl was speaker at the 2 p.m. service.

Mrs. Roger Rusch was reader and the Rev. C. J. Pierson gave the benediction. The program was planned by the United Church Women of Outagamie County. Mrs. Edgar Dickey is president of the group.

From noon to 1:30 p.m. Friday the organ at Memorial Presbyterian was a meditation background as women of the county gathered for World Day of Prayer services. Bells summoned worshippers from noon to 2 p.m., the time of the service.

"Let us Pray" was the theme for the service this year, the 78th observance of this worldwide prayer fellowship.

Gifts collected at the event are used to help maintain 12 Christian colleges for women in Asia and Africa; support translation of Christian literature and its distribution to women and children throughout the world; support the migrant ministry and extend hospitality to more than 60,000 students coming to America from all over the world.

A Quiet Hour of Meditation was taken before the service of the World Day of Prayer began. Above, women who attended the event, listened to the organ and participated with women all over the world in the annual observance. Below, Mrs. Carl Brooker gives programs to Mrs. Marvin Bishop and Mrs. Arthur Jepson. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Careless Care of Clothes Expensive

NEW YORK — When Blanche Wardrobe finishes describing the various steps she takes to keep her wardrobe in top condition, you wonder how the willowy, green-eyed Metropolitan opera star has time to sing.

Yet it is because concert tours, opera and television appearances consume so many of her precious hours that Miss Theobald is so meticulous.

"I can't afford to be careless," she says, "My clothes have to last because I just don't have time to shop."

Whether your reason for keeping garments in action a long time is a shortage of time or money, you may benefit from some of her tricks.

Suits These make up a major portion of her daytime wardrobe. "I pay good money for them," she says, "but that's not extravagant when you consider I don't buy one very often. I choose classic styles and, with nine shoulder contour and an attached clamp bar. The bar placing them. And it follows the shape and absorb some of the dampness inside.

And Miss Theobald never, never tries to hasten the drying. Like a model, her accessories are always ready. She keeps her many scarves unfolded over the crossbar of a hanger, and other rolled cylinder-like between layers of tissue over a mailing tube in her dresser drawer. Both ways eliminate folding lines.

Naturally, tidy Miss Theobald does not wait for lifts to be noticeably run down before re-wads of tissue paper to maintain the shape and absorb some of the dampness inside.

When her shoes are slightly wet, she inserts shoe trees and process by exposing them to direct heat. The heat reduces the crispness of the stiffened inner lining. She stuffs them loosely with wads of tissue paper to maintain the shape and absorb some of the dampness inside.

Questions On Sewing

Q. I'm confused about French seams. One friend makes them entirely by hand-stitching from the right side. Another friend does half by hand and half by machine. Which method is best?—MRS. C. C.

justed in a more complicated process than just taking in the side seams. Buy your size 12 pattern to fit your bust and make the pattern alteration on the skirt. This is much simpler than trying to adjust the bust and the shoulder.

Q. What heights are used on proportioned patterns? —MISS L. B.

A. The measurements are: short, 5'3" to 5'5"; average, 5'6" to 5'7"; tall, 5'8" to 5'10".

Q. I am allergic to wool and can't wear any of the unlined wool dresses I made before I developed the allergy. I don't want to take them apart and line them and I can't find any slips in the stores that cover the bare areas. Can you suggest any solution? By the way, I don't mind lining the sleeves because I can apply them by hand. —MRS. N. G.

A. I suggest buying a sleeveless sheath pattern, and some nylon (either tricot or taffeta). Then make this sheath, but place the zipper on the right side seam instead of the left so that it won't conflict with dresses that have side zippers.

Q. Can all commercial linings or underlinings be washed? —MISS C. E.

A. Most of them can, but be sure to check the tags or labels that come with the fabrics before purchasing.

The Ailing House Relaying Old Tile On Floor

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: We are going to completely remodel and modernize our kitchen, including re-covering the floor. At present we have an asphalt tile floor. Is there any way to take this up so that we could re-lay it on our basement floor?

A: Asphalt tile can be safely removed by careful heating with an electric iron to liquefy the adhesive underneath. First place a sheet of heavy wrapping paper between the iron and the tile. The tiles can be easily pried up and will be unmarked, ready to be relaid in the basement.

Q: I am planning to build a vacation shack and have been warned about the development of dry rot. How can this be prevented?—Buffalo, N.Y.

A: Coating or impregnating wood with creosote, or better, odorless chemical wood preservatives, will check the development of dry rot. Thorough circulation of air helps retard the condition. Dry rot is the result of a fungus growth which develops in wood exposed to continuous dampness, causing the wood to turn to powder. If surface, depending on surface texture.

The treatment should be applied when outside temperature is above 50 degrees F. Suggest getting free instruction leaflet, "Protection of Existing Concrete Pavements from Salt and Calcium Chloride" from the local office of the Portland Cement Association, or from their headquarters at 33 West Grand Ave., Chicago 10.

Q: I was much interested in your recent item on salt erosion protection for preserving my two-year-old concrete driveway. Since I would like to do it right, what would exact proportions be? Would one cup of linseed oil and one cup of tur-

The Family in Europe is more important than the pursuit of happiness, says Gamble Benedict Porumbeanu, 23. She, her husband and two sons are shown here in their home in Zurich, Switzerland. They will soon move to Rome, where Andrei will be a business executive. Married after a headline romance, the couple was almost divorced last fall. (AP Newfeatures Photo)

Romeo, Juliet of Jet Set Find Happiness in Europe

NEW YORK — Someone told from which affection had been thoroughly rinsed. Gamble Benedict Porumbeanu the other day that she had a look of maturity unusual in a girl who had just turned 23.

"Something should have rubbed off," she said wryly, "after all the experience I've had." Gamble's experiences, stemming from her love for a handsome Romanian whom her late grandmother bitterly called a fortune hunter, are public property.

Since she was 18 her life has been chronicled in headlines: A freighter trip to Europe with Andrei Porumbeanu in January, 1960. Her tearful return with family lawyers. The legal battles over her guardianship and her inheritance and over his divorcing his wife. Marriage before a justice of peace in North Carolina: births of two sons, Gheorghe Hiba, who will be 3 in April, and Grigore, now 1; divorce action last fall charging Andrei with misconduct on a business trip; reconciliation.

Where does their marriage stand now? Can the jet set's Romeo and Juliet—as the gossip columnists have dubbed them—find happiness again? To Be Executive In New York before moving from Zurich to Rome, where he'll become an executive in a chemical firm, the couple talked frankly about their recent difficulties.

"I've been more than extremely happy," said the slim, pretty, blue-eyed heiress in her quiet, finishing school voice. Andrei, who can speak eloquently and at length in six languages, likes to keep at a subject until he has exhausted it — and this was one dear to his heart.

Relationship Important "It's vital to realize what is the important thing in the relationship of a husband and wife," he went on. "What is the most sustaining value? Are we to succumb to momentary whims which would destroy all that may have been built up in 5, 10, 15 years of married life?"

"I think there is a greater value, and it requires more effort to understand when another shows frailty, than to renounce the marriage — and I feel that very profoundly."

"I don't understand people who relish the idea of renouncing the marriage," said Gamble. Gamble admires Andrei's intellect deeply. He was frequently called a society chauffeur during the headline romance days — to his amusement — and he likes to point out he attended cadet school in Austria, studied philosophy in Austria and Economics at Columbia University. Served in the Intelligence Branch of the U. S. Air Force during the Korean War and worked as a research assistant for an Oil Company in New York.

He grinned broadly and said: "A news correspondent in Europe once asked me about reports I took women out while on business trips. I said 'would you expect me to take men out?'" By this time it was the cocktail hour. Gamble wanted milk because she doesn't like anything alcoholic but wine at dinner. Andrei, a thoroughgoing gourmet, grumbled something about "I thought you'd get over that in Europe" and ordered it anyway.

"I have learned a great deal living in Europe that I wouldn't have learned here," Gamble admitted. "There the welfare of the family is more important than the pursuit of happiness. These are the heads of the families. I like that very much. Some women here say 'round gold pins are the only thing they get married they start trying to tear them down. I have it is that I never been a member since coming here years ago. A new church building is in the planning stage, along with a non-sectarian refuge center to help newcomers from the old country to adjust."

Both Porumbeaus wear plain gold wedding bands. What does Gamble want her husband to do for her? "I feel the boys to be when they grow up? But to excel in what interests them," he said. "All we can do is give hope to be the first couple to 20c in coin to cover cost and young? We diminish the stature of the tools toward this goal be married in the new church."

Child Rearing In rearing children, she said, "I believe in giving them warmth and affection. But they need rules and I raised permissively grow up to be disorganized adults."

As she explained how her two sons understand the daily pattern of life, playing and being sung to sleep by Mama, Andrei produced some color snapshots of the youngsters playing in the huge garden at their villa near Zurich.

"When I go riding I take Gheorghe on the saddle with me," he said. "He spends a lot of time with nature. The first words he learned were cow and tree, grass, horse."

He started talking at 5 months. Gamble insisted. "And when he was a few days old Andrei started playing classical music and walking back and forth with him, so he'd remember. Maybe there's something to it: he likes music."

"They would like more children. Andrei exclaims, 'That's a Romanian ex-pression for wanting a lot. I was determined to have two sons,' said Gamble. "I have learned a great deal living in Europe that I wouldn't have learned here."

Andrei said that in this country couples marry at such young ages the boy has had little experience and the girl is comparatively older. "I feel the boys to be when they grow up? But to excel in what interests them," he said. "All we can do is give hope to be the first couple to 20c in coin to cover cost and young? We diminish the stature of the tools toward this goal be married in the new church."

Chap Remedy

Outdoor enthusiasts are not ever, the skin requires special the only people who experience pampering. A simple and inexpensive, yet a painful chapping. It can come to any of us as the result of effective remedy takes the form of white petroleum jelly. When the cause of chap is an abnormal lack of moisture in the skin. Normally the content of the skin's outer layer is twenty per cent water. The reservoir is drained by harsh or dry weather, by overheated rooms and friction from clothing. When it falls below ten per cent, chapping begins.

Usually the problem can be prevented by regular application of emollients, for they act to hold the moisture on the skin. Once the damage is done, however, the weight of the family behind them.

and finish it by hand. This is excellent for a very narrow, fine seam and should be used on expensive sheer fabrics (Figure 2). To do this, place the right sides of the fabric together as you usually do and make a normal seam, taking full seam allowance. Trim one seam allowance to 1/4 inch. Turn under the raw edges of the other seam allowance and hem by hand along the machine stitching line.

Q. I am allergic to wool and can't wear any of the unlined wool dresses I made before I developed the allergy. I don't want to take them apart and line them and I can't find any slips in the stores that cover the bare areas. Can you suggest any solution? By the way, I don't mind lining the sleeves because I can apply them by hand. —MRS. N. G.

A. I suggest buying a sleeveless sheath pattern, and some nylon (either tricot or taffeta). Then make this sheath, but place the zipper on the right side seam instead of the left so that it won't conflict with dresses that have side zippers.

Q. Can all commercial linings or underlinings be washed? —MISS C. E.

A. Most of them can, but be sure to check the tags or labels that come with the fabrics before purchasing.

Q. My hips are about two inches larger than a standard size 12 pattern but my bust is right for it. Should I buy a larger pattern to fit the hips properly and then take in the side seams of the bodice to fit the bust?—MISS T. O.

A. No. The bust must be adjusted in a more complicated process than just taking in the side seams. Buy your size 12 pattern to fit your bust and make the pattern alteration on the skirt. This is much simpler than trying to adjust the bust and the shoulder.

Q. What heights are used on proportioned patterns? —MISS L. B.

A. The measurements are: short, 5'3" to 5'5"; average, 5'6" to 5'7"; tall, 5'8" to 5'10".
